SONS, DAUGHTERS RETURN TO HOMES FOR THANKSGIVING DAY

By LOUISE STEPHENSON

Homecoming!

Ever since the first pilgrim youth returned from afar to celebrate the Thanksgiving day with his parents, his brothers, and his sisters, the last Thursday in November has been held sacred as one of the few days of the year when wandering sons and daughters return again to the parental roof. Therefore it is always a gala occasion and few are the homes throughout the country that do not celebrate in some manner on this occasion.

Family Reunion Held at Nichelsen Home

One of the most pleasant of Thanksgiving reunions was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nichelsen of 1625 Bush street when their children and grand children gathered there for dinner.

The afternoon was spent in reminiscing and in listening to an entertaining musical program which had been arranged by the younger guests.

Those present for the affair included Mr. and Mrs. Nichelsen, Mr. and Mrs. William Hoefer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loose and their daughter, Miss Annabelle Loose, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garlock and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Barrett and their son, Richard Barrett, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Junke.

Miss Alberta Crane and Harold Smith to Marry

Miss Alberta Crane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Crane of Pasadena, formerly of Santa Ana, and Harold Ray Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Smith of 2405 Valencia avenue, this city, will be married this spring.

Friends of the young people were told of the happy news at a pretty party held recently at the Crane home. The affair was held ostensibly to honor Miss Ruth Allender of this city, who was a house guest of Miss Crane.

The evening was spent in playing games, after which refreshments were served. The color motif was coral pink which was accentuated in the lovely roses, delicately tinted glassware and even in the refreshments.

At each guest's place was placed a brightly polished penny which caused much speculation as to its mission. The mystery was solved when a dainty "news lassie" in the person of Miss Crane's little niece, Phyllis Jean Richards, entered the room with her arms full of newspapers and called "Extra! Extra! Evening Herald. One Cent. Read all the latest about Ray and Berta!"

Needless to say the shining pennies were eagerly exchanged for the papers, and when they were unrolled each one disclosed a ribbon-tied scroll on which was typed:

"Let's buy a paper from the lassie, wee;
Ah! 'Tis very good news I see:
'Two can live as cheaply as one'
And Ray and Alberta will prove it
When April is done!"

Mexican Centers Enjoy Thanksgiving Parties

In keeping with the Thanksgiving spirit, parties were held in all the night classes and in many of the day classes of the Adult Education department of the Santa Ana schools. In spite of much sickness, many of the classes nearly double their usual attendance. Many conversational games were played and music was enjoyed.

Through the play spirit the reserve and timidity of the Mexican is broken down and the teachers find that they express themselves in English much better than either teacher or pupil had thought possible, according to Mrs. Golden Norwood, who is head of the work here.

Refreshments were served in each of the night schools, Franklin, Logan, Delhi and Costa Mesa.

Thanksgiving luncheons were held in the Logan, Delhi and Daisy street centers also. The women of the classes each contributed to these luncheons and the rest of the refreshments at both day and night classes were contributed through the courtesy of the Exchange club and the Woman's club of Costa Mesa.

In discussing the many things for which they were thankful, never did they forget to express gratitude for the opportunity afforded them by the California school system and especially for the kind personal interest of their teachers.

The work in these classes will continue without interruption through the holiday season as this is the time when labor conditions make it possible for a large number of the Mexican people to attend school who cannot do so earlier in the year.

A new class in typwriting will be started next Wednesday evening and will meet at the Business Institute, at 415 1-2 North Sycamore street.

By PAUL FREDRIX
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Estelle Romaine Manville, heiress, will put on the late Queen Sophia's bridal veil today and marry Count Folke Bernadotte, nephew of the Swedish king. It will be a $500,000 wedding, with some $1,000,000 worth of gifts.

The ceremony will be in St. John's Episcopal church at Pleasantville, a small Westchester county town outside New York. A special railway coach will take society editors to the scene from here.

These writers will see, in the little church at 4 o'clock, a setting of regal splendor, with the following unusual features:

As best man—Prince Gustavus Adolphus, eldest son of the Swedish Crown Prince, and himself the heir presumptive to the throne.

As ushers—Prince Sigvard, second son of the Crown Prince; Baron Sigfrid Rallamb, aide de camp to Prince Gustavus; Baron Carl Eric Von Platen; Count Pher Sparre and Lieutenants Enhoning, Lagercrantz and Cauli of the king's horse guards.

They will see the bride, daughter of H. Edward Manville, asbestos manufacturer, in the veil that the bridegroom's grandmother wore at her royal wedding more than a half century ago.

The editors will see the highest society as guests and bridesmaids. There will be, besides American social registerites, Count Carl Bernadotte, the bridegroom's brother; Countess Marianne Bernadotte, his sister in law; Elsie Bernadotte, his sister; Count Carl Gustaf Bonde and Countess Ebba Bonde; Count Nils Wachtmeister and Countess Martha Wachtmeister; Baroness Gunhild Von Platen, and Count Eric Von Rosen, lieutenant in the royal bodyguard.

In reporting this event the society editors will be guided by social secretaries who have seen that exactly the proper tone was given a long list of preliminary luncheons, dinners and theater parties.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Are we "forgetting the pleasure and dignity of eating?" The American Restaurant Association believes that we are.

The Association does not particularly elaborate its contention. We are not sure whether it refers to our table manners, our lack of discrimination in ordering, the fact that we diet and count calories and don't eat whole roast boars as we did when we were pretty largely a nation of "farm hands," or just what does all them.

* * *

WE'RE STILL EATING

But none of us can help observing facts about the great national custom of eating. It bobs up at us in so many different guises. But whether many, or any, of them indicate that we are "forgetting the pleasure and dignity of eating" is another question.

Sometimes one is inclined to believe that exactly as much time and attention and interest is given food these days, popular opinion to the contrary, as back in the days when a box social or a family reunion or a church supper or an ice cream and cake bazaar or a quilting bee or barn raising, with emphasis on the refreshment phase of the program, were about the only forms of social diversion our forebears had.

* * *

HOW DID THEY DO IT?

We laugh at time-yellowed old menus of wayside inn and hotel dug from ancestral boxes of souvenirs. We read of dinners beginning with oysters, cold pheasant and grouse, going on through cold duck and other fowl, then fish, then roast of beef, then roasted fowl, a dozen vegetables, a half dozen desserts, and we wonder how they did it.

Gene Tunney's wedding luncheon menu didn't sound so far different, though. I've forgotten some of the gastronomic marvels, but I know there was caviar and sole marguery and breast of chicken under glass with mushrooms and two or three desserts that sounded like something out of the Grand Vizier's nuptial banquet in the Arabian Nights.

* * *

THERE'S FOOD EVERYWHERE

We can conceive of no form of social diversion today without food. Bridge means tea or luncheon or even dinner. Calls of the old-fashioned variety with calling card, white kid gloves and a parasol have been transformed into "afternoons at home" with a hostess at the tea table and several prettily dressed friends proferring anchovy sandwiches and lavender iced cakes.

Do you ever go to market? Have you ever contrasted the wares there with what you found when you, as a little girl went to market with your mother? The efficiency of commerce has knit together the whole world of food. Cheese from Italy, figs from Smyrna, anchovies from South America, avocados from California, terrapin from Australia, are here under one roof.

TO MARKET, TO MARKET!

The fruit and vegetable stall offers things of which even our mothers had not heard a generation ago. Take the simple matter of a green. Once upon a time it was lettuce, and that was that. Today you can buy romaine, lettuce, endive, chickory, cress, a score of others. Winter makes no difference. Here are your fresh lima beans, pease, celery, tomatoes, strawberries, peaches and pears, egg plant and oyster plant, radishes and green onions, mushrooms and fresh spinach.

"Forgetting the pleasure and dignity of eating?"

Perhaps the "dignity," whatever that is. But we are certainly not forgetting the pleasure, nor according it any less time than ever!

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

Emergency Menu—And Doesn't It Sound Good!

Just supposing unexpected company dropped in for lunch and all you had in the kitchen was the (inevitable) spinach for dinner, a few carrots, some bouillon cubes, cottage cheese, currant jelly and a few slices of whole wheat bread?

That actually happened to me today and this is what came of it.

Creamed Cpinach Short-Cake
Brown Gravy with Minced Carrots
Cottage Cheese Fluff
Currant Jelly Sandwiches, Coffee

The spinach and diced carrots were each put to cook while biscuit dough was mixed up, rolled into thin layers and cooked. Afterwards the layers were slit and buttered, the spinach was generously creamed and used as a filling. Brown gravy was made with abouillon cube, the diced carrots added to it.

A little cream was added to the half-cup of cottage cheese and it was beaten vigorously for five minutes. Currant jelly made the whole wheat sandwiches, cut in fingers and used to garnish the mound of cheese fluff on each plate.

That's all . . . it takes as long to write it, almost, as it took to prepare, and it was just as good as it sounds imposing!

* * *

TODAY'S RECIPE

Sour Cream Apple Pie

Enough apples to fill pan, cut in eighths.
Pastry for lower crust only
2-3 cup sour cream
2-3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 egg, well beaten
Nutmeg or cinnamon
Few grains of salt

Not just any apple will do for this particular pie, it must be an apple of distinctive flavor, one that will cook soft and yet hold its shape: Belle Fleur or Spitzenberg would be my choice but each locality has its own pet variety.

* * *

Make a rich pie paste out of ½ cup of flour and two tablespoons cold vegetable shortening, a little salt and just enough ice water to make the paste hang together. Handle quickly while lining and fluting the edges of the pan. Peel, core and cut the apples into thin slices, 8ths or 16ths. Begin at the outer edge and lay them in rows around and around until the center is reached; repeat until the pan is full. Slip into a hot oven just long enough to set the crust. If using an electric range have the bottom unit the hotter of the two. Remove from the oven and fill with the cream mixture, prepared so:

* * *

Beat the egg light, add the flour and sugar, beat again, gradually beating in the sour thick cream. Pour this over the apples and set back into a cooler oven to finish baking. Watch the heat carefully so that the mixture will not boil out of the pie and that too much heat dos not curdle and separate the custard. Give this part of the baking a full 40 minutes.

Cool and serve with a good tangy cheese, and you'll say you have eaten apple pie for the first time in your life.

Just 360 energy calories will be found in each of the six sections in this pie; and another 100 calories for cheese and you have consumed a fairly respectable meal.

* * *

This is the last day that we offer free the leaflet SERVING WINTER VEGETABLES if you send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

It will be to your advantage to have this leaflet; it will cut your food budget and give variety to your choice of vegetables.

* * *

With Christmas but a few short weeks away we must begin to make plans for entertainment of the boys and girls away at school who expect a party when they come home. How about serving Cafeteria Style?

That will be the leaflet for next week, and please take notice that this leaflet can be utilized for small church entertainments as well as parties in teh home.

Au Revoir Till Monday.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES by KNICK

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

With all the wheels off of the rig, the Tinies jumped and danced a jig. They all were very puzzled as to what was in store. The hunter man had said that he had some nice plan in store but gee, they'd waited long to find out what, and couldn't wait much more.

"Aw, tell us what's the big surprise," said Coppy. "Can't you realize that we are very curious?" This made teh hunter smile. Said he, "There still is work to do and I'm expecting help from you. Just keep on guessing if you wish. I'll tell you after while.

"You came here in a little boat, and in the fear that it won't float, I don't intend to let you leave by sailing 'cross the sea. The puzzling plan I have in mind, will work much better, you will find. Help put the wheels upon the boat. Then leave it all to me."

"A fine idea!" Scouty cried. "I'll bet we're going to have a ride. But, what will make the rowboat go if it's kept on the ground. We'll gladly work with all our might until the wheels are nailed on tight. But I can't understand just how we'll make the wheels go 'round.

"Don't ask so many questions, lad," the hunter said. "You'll soon be glad that I have planned this thrilling scheme." A smile spread on his face. This made the Tinymtes feel good. They worked as quickly as they could, and soon the four big buggy wheels were in their proper place.

The Tinies shouted, "There, that's done, and now we're ready for some fun." The hunter quickly whistled, long and loud, a funny note. Out of the woods there came a deer, and all the bunch began to cheer. The hunter took it by the horns, and hitched it to the boat.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

The twenty-pound turkeys were strutting their stuff the other day near the corner where I was waiting for a bus. Some city holder skeptical of getting something extra good in turkey meat near Thanksgiving had bought these two fat birds in the country somewhere, no doubt, and had them parked on the vacant lot next to his house, awaiting the zero hour.

A mother with her little boy also were waiting for the bus. Of course, the little chap was all worked up over the turkeys.

"Look, Mama. What are they?"

"Turkeys!!" answered Mama. "They're what you eat on Thanksgiving."

"Will we have turkey?"

"Why, I hope so. Maybe Daddy will buy us one."

"Like those?"

"No. A dressed one."

He wanted to know what "dressed" meant.

"Dead. Ready to eat," she told him.

"Will those be dead?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"Next week. On Thanksgiving."

"How? How will they be dead, Mama?"

"They'll have their heads cut off," she answered patiently. "Someone will cut their heads off and take off their feathers and cook them."

The litle boy stared and stared. "I don't like turkey. Tell Daddy not to bring a turkey," he said suddenly.

His mother didn't quite understand. "You would if you tasted it. It's very good. Don't you remember? Last Christmas we had turkey."

The boy didn't answer. He was thinking hard.

I was glad she didn't joke about the contemplated murder as so many of us do before children. We love to chortle about the poor benighted gobbler getting it in the neck.

Of course there is such a thing as being too squeamish. There is no reason why children should not know facts. And yet I have always had a repugnance about allowing my children to see certain things.

I have never forgotten how I found one of them crying in the kitchen over two rabbits a friend had shot and sent us. As their pathetic little carcasses lay soft and mute on the kitchen table she was trying the reconcile this murder with the stories I read her every night about Peter Rabbit and his immortal relative, Uncle Wiggily.

It seems to me that we ought to keep our food murders, so to speak, in the background as much as possible.

Los Alamitos

The Laurel Parent-Teacher' association met in the school auditorium Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Hazel Campbell presiding. Mrs. Thurber appointed secretary, owing to the illness of the regular secretary, Mrs. Jewel Watts. Mrs. Neal Beisel, president of the fourth district of Orange county, gave a talk on various subjects concerning P.-T. A. work, and also stated that it would be advisable for the association to organize a mothers' educational center for the Spanish mothers, which could be done with the assistance of the Spanish graduates of last year.

The Farmers and Merchants 1929 Christmas Club is now open. It is the third year of this popular idea. The 1928 Christmas Savings Club was over DOUBLE the size of the 1927 club. And we are confident that the 1929 club will be double the size of that of 1928! Times are better in Santa Ana today than they were last year, and more people can enjoy this plan if they will.

Membership in the Christmas Savings Club means ample funds next year when cash-in-hand will be more keenly appreciated than at any other season. You can't know how good it seems to receive a check for fifty or a hundred dollars in time for Christmas shopping until you, too, have let this club plan solve your Christmas money riddles.

There's a Club to Fit Purses of Every Size

The smallest club is No. 25, which calls for 25c a week, and this is a popular one among the children and students. The next in size means paying 50c a week for 50 weeks. The next calls for $1.00 a week. And one of the most popular of the clubs is No. 200—you pay $2.00 a week into this club for 50 weeks and receive $100 cash plus 4% interest (paid in all classes). $100 is a good round figure and more people like it than any other, although there are many members in the $5 and $10-a-week clubs.

Save Your 1929 Gift Money

Call at the bank just as soon as you can and enter one of these clubs. Just think how pleasant it would be to have ample Christmas money RIGHT NOW!—and that thought will send you scurrying to make application!

In the company were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kleinknight and members of their family, Paul and Marvin Klineknight of the home, the Misses Eva and Alice Kleinknight and Ralph Kleinknight of Laguna Beach, who motored here for the day.

Card Party

A mistake occurred in announcing the date of the next card party of the Busy Bee society, as arranged at a business meeting last Monday. It was stated that the party would be on the third Monday in December whereas it should have been given as the third Tuesday in December, with Mrs. Edna Cozad as hostess.

Entertainment

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Loomis, daughter, Mrs. Clara Seigel, daughter, Doris, and son, Leonard, were entertained at Thanksgiving dinner in Long Beach by Mrs. Flora Thomas, a sister of Mrs. Loomis, who surprised them by entertaining in her own new home which she had purchased without letting them know. Great was their surprise upon going to her apartment to find that the home just next door was hers. Mrs. Seigel and daughter are remaining over in Long Beach for a few days as the guests of another aunt.

Special Service

Thanksgiving was fittingly observed by the Westminster Presbyterian church with a special service held on Wednesday evening at the church.

Hymns were sung and testimonies given preceding the Thanksgiving address given by the pastor, the Rev. R. A. Weld, who talked of the first Thangskiving and those which have followed.

Anaheim

Guest Night

An enjoyable event of recent date was the dinner given at the Elks' club by the Toastmasters' club, guests being members of the Toasties club and wives of the hosts. The club president, Joe Collins, George Hedstrom, toastmaster, and Louis Friis, were in charge of the affair.

The long "U" shaped banquet table was decorated with baskets of chrysanthemums in shades of pink and yellow. The guests were extended a welcome by Mr. Hedstrom and the response to the welcome was made by Mrs. Cyril Hannah, president of the Toasties club.

A musical program included numbers by Ellis Rhodes, tenor, with Mrs. Kate McCullah as his accompanist. Songs given by Mr. Rhodes were "Sun Down" and "Friend of Mine" by Sanderson. The Collins twins, Katherine and Ellen, presented several entertaining numbers and Louis Romoff played two violin solos with his sister Esther Romoff as his accompanist. William Payne gave a reading "Gunga Din." The only formal speech of the evening was made by O. H. Price who told of Thanksgiving as he had understood it as a child.

Impromptu talks were given by Jimmy Hefron, Franklin Howatt, Henson Faris, and Leo Friis. Guests were introduced by members of the club.

To Long Beach

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Price and son Britts, and daughter, Charlotte, were dinner guests Thanksgiving Day at a turkey dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graham of Long Beach. Mr. Price is the city manager of Anaheim.

Church Wedding

Miss Dorothy Marie Spillman, daughter of Mrs. Lena Spillman of Olive road, and Clyde La Verne Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Chapman of Santa Ana, were married recently at Calvary church in Placentia, the Rev. Charles Fuller reading the service in the presence of the 100 guests. The church was elaborately decorated, and the service was read under an arch of roses and ferns.

The maid of honor was Miss Madeline Spillman, sister of the bride, and a brother of the bridegroom, Ross Chapman, was the best man. Master Raymond Chapman was the ring bearer, preceded down the aisle by the dainty little flower, La Veda Appman. Before the service a close friend of the bride sang "O Promise Me," and "I Love You Truly," the bridal party assembling at the altar while Miss Hattie Conn played softly Mendelssohn's wedding march.

Mrs. Chapman has lived in Anaheim for several years. Mr. Chapman is an oil worker. He and his bride will make their home with Mrs. Spillman on Olive road.

Those from Anaheim attending the wedding were, besides the bride's mother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Appman, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Spillman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Spillman, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Royer Payon, Harry Meier and Miss Anna Meier.

Birthday Party

Raymond Ouither, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Ouither, celebrated his eighth birthday recently with a group of his young friends at the Anaheim city park. Games of various kinds were enjoyed during the afternoon. At a late hour, refreshments including a large birthday cake was served by Mrs. Ouither assisted by Mrs. Clifford Barron and Miss Alice Miller.

Those invited to share the afternoon with the young host were Jackie Barron, Parker Markle, Bobby Armentrout, Billy Armentrout, Leighton Ross, Billy Ross, Richard Morley, Wallace Riutcel, Clifford Kopitzke, Richard Kendrick, Langden Hilleary, Herbert Aup, Dan Russel, Stuart Lewis, Harold Peak, Teddy Wilson and Buddy Wilson.

Wedding Surprise

Miss Eva King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. King of Fullerton, and George Tays of Anaheim were quietly married Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Lottie Johnson on South Lemon street. Dr. Benjamin S. Haywood, pastor of the White Temple Methodist church, read the service.

The bride was assisted by Mrs. Johnson. Frank E. Tays, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Immediately following the service, the young people left for a honeymoon in Northern California, and upon their return will be at home to their friends in Anaheim. The wedding date has been set for next spring, and the announcement of the marriage Monday afternoon came as a complete surprise to friends of the couple.

Holiday Season Only

Here Is the Reason

HERE IS A LOGICAL, TRUTHFUL EXPLANATION OF THESE SPECIAL PRICES: EXPERIENCE HAS TAUGHT US THAT DURING THE HOLIDAY SEASON PEOPLE POSTPONE THEIR DENTAL WORK. HOWEVER, THE ONLY WAY SUCH LOW PRICES AS I CONSISTENTLY OFFER ARE MADE POSSIBLE IS BY MY STAFF ALWAYS KEEPING BUSY. SO—IN ORDER TO KEEP THEM BUSY DURING THIS TIME—I MAKE IT VERY MUCH WORTH YOUR WHILE TO HAVE YOUR DENTAL WORK DONE NOW! THAT'S FAIR ENOUGH—IS IT NOT? The Dentist who has a patient "every now and then" must charge MORE than one who is ALWAYS BUSY—even though the second Dentist does SUPERIOR work! That's why Dr. Beauchamp ADVERTISES (to be always busy)—and that, in turn, is why Dr. Beauchamp can offer the LOWEST PRICES on Dentistry of the HIGHEST CHARACTER!

RADIO MUSIC IS AMPLIFIED 50 BILLION TIMES

When the nation-wide audience of the Lucky Strike Dance orchestra hears its Broadway melodies each Saturday night, few listeners, perhaps, pause to consider the modern radio marvel which makes this possible. Expert radio engineers have figured out that if all the people in the world could gather together in one place and shout their loudest in unison, the carrying-force of their united effort would be only one-thirtieth as strong as the power of today's great broadcast stations.

Thus, if all the musicians in the world were formed into one massed orchestra, their music could only be heard a comparatively short distance from the outer ring of performers. Yet the strains of the Lucky Strike Dance orchestra are heard simultaneously and just as clearly in San Francisco as they are in the New York studio of the National Broadcasting company, where these entertainments originate.

Technical experiments demonstrate that the high-powered vacuum tubes used in the instruments of the great transmitting stations increase the power of sounds which reach the microphone 50 billion times. Almost impossible as it is to grasp such a figure, the fact remains that the Lucky Strike music travels through the air a distance of 3000 miles from coast to coast and may be readily picked up in every city, town and hamlet in the United States.

While the Lucky Strike Dance orchestra is the largest on the air regularly each week, the volume of the music in the studio is precisely the same as it would be in any night club from the softest modulation to great crashing crescendos. If the human ear could hear the tremendous amplification given it by the great transmitter tubes, the increased volume would be equal to the sound which could be made by a fabulous orchestra of 175,000,000,000 musicians.

Of course this does not actually take place audibly at least. Such amplification simply results in the driving force which sends the Lucky Strike music out over the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the gulf. When it is picked up by receiving sets in more than 30,000,000 homes in this vast area, each tone and modulation is heard exactly as the musicians play the number in hte studio of WEAF.

Commission Airs Use Of Radio In Search For Oil

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Use of radio channels in the geophysical field, in oil prospecting and exploring and in visual broadcasting has been discussed before the federal radio commission, when applicants for licenses to engage in these new lines of endeavor in the radio field were heard.

The commission made public its calendar of hearings in these cases. There are seven applications for construction permits in geophysical work, all from oil or geographical exploration companies.

Six applications for permits to construct television stations are on file.

WGBS REORGANIZES

With its assignment to a new wavelength, 254.1 meters, WGBS, New York, reorganized and is now known as the General Broadcasting system. Dailey Paskman, director of WGBS since 1924, continues with the station as president of the new corporation.

TO CHECK STATIONS

A constant frequency station in a central location is to be the means of keeping constant check on broadcasters, to assure their remaining on the frequencies assigned them. This station will be operated by the U. S. department of commerce.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The majority of stocks on the stock exchange declined in today's short session. But recessions were held to a relatively small amount and tickers kept nearly abreast of quotations, being only about 12 minutes late near the close.

A few rails advanced and special issues here and there in the list were higher, but many others sold off from 1 to 6 points. Copper shares participated in the decline, the selling in that time being mostly profit taking. Anaconda and Kennecott each lost more than two points, while declines of more than a point occurred in Andes and Grene Cannea.

Montgomery Ward rose to a new record in early dealings but dropped back sharply when the monthly sales report was issued. The company's November sales were 19 per cent above last year and set a new high record for that month.

Allied Chemical reacted after early strength. General Motors lost a point, U. S. Steel more than a point, Consolidated Gas more than two points, Sears Roebuck more than six, Packard more than four, Yellow Truck more than two and Chrysler more than a point.

On the other hand, Kroger Grocery gained more than six points, International Nickel held half of a 13½ point rise, Hudson rose two points and fair gains were scored by Missouri, Kensas & Texas, Pennsylvania Railroad and Standard Gas.

Traders watched for the opening on Canadian Marconi on the curb. Trading in that issue had been suspended from yesterday afternoon until today to give the specialist an opportunity to catch up with his books. A new specialist was installed today and trading reopened. But it was not until well after the first hour when the first sale appeared.

Canadian Marconi opened 60,000 shares at 11⅛ off 4⅞. A few days ago the stock was selling above 28. Earlier this year it was as low as $3 a share. Yesterday it opened 56,000 shares at 27⅝ and on a statement by its chairman, Sir Joseph Flavelle, that the issue was selling too high, it broke to 15½ and closed at 16.

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Bears were completely routed on the board of trade today when shorts in December wheat were forced to cover. All deliveries made sharp gains. Corn was draggy but feit the strength in wheat. Oats were little changed.

At the close wheat was 1⅛ to 2⅛c higher, corn was up ⅝ to ⅞c and oats were unchanged to ⅛c up. Provisions made sharp gains.

Light deliveries of wheat on December contracts boosted the active month shortly after the opening. Cash trade was unchanged.

Trade in corn was mostly a changing affair. Cash market was unchanged to ⅛c higher.

Deliveries of December oats totaled 75,000 bushels. Cash oats were unchanged.

BONDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—A firm tone prevailed on the bond market in the final session o fthe week. Domestic industrials were best performers. Rails with few exceptions advanced, and foreign issues were steadier.

Copper issues moved up again and rather good advances were scored by utilities, tobacco issues and some of the specialties. Oils and sugars held steady.

Seaboard issues rallied as did St. Paul 5s, the latter being the most active in the carrier section.

U. S. government loans were dull.

DEALER SHOULD LOOM LARGE IN AUTO MERCHANDISING

The confidence of the car buyer in the personal or corporate responsibility of the dealer is constantly becoming a bigger factor in automobile sales.

For a long time cars were bought largely on manufacturers' claims. The dealer was regarded by the public as merely a means of local distribution of a certain make of car.

But today the car dealer in any community is regarded in much the same manner that the old established merchant in other lines is regarded, and the confidence of the car buyer is directed towards the local person or establishment handling the car.

This is coming about because the car owner has learned by experience that nobody but the local dealer can successfully assume responsibility for local satisfaction in car ownership.

"Crop Certainty Lands"

THE Kern County farmer enjoys what is known as a crop certainty. Wells and ditches make him independent of droughts. Frosts are rare and not severe. There have been no cyclones. He will have good years and years not so good, but nowhere else could he have better assurance against a crop failure.

His assurance here is for a fair crop and a large crop, year after year. Five and six cuttings of alfalfa make these lands profitable for dairying. Also they provide good profit in hogs. Both dairying and hog raising make good because of the fertility of the soil and the closeness of abundant water supply within shallow pumping depth.

Also both dairying and hog raising pay because the demand exceeds the supply. Grain, forage, cotton, corn, fruit, beans and other vegetables yield good crops in these "crop certainty lands."

Buttonwillow Ranch, 25 miles west of Bakersfield, has been known for many years as one of the very richest farming sections in California. These lands are now offered for sale at lower prices than any others of similar productivity, and located so well in relation to markets. The terms are one-fourth cash; the remainder in ten years at 6% interest. The terms and the interest rate, like the low price, are both to your advantage.

Study the map to see the location of these "crop certainty lands," extending from near Buena Vista Lake in Kern County to near Tulare Lake in Kings County. See the course of Kern River coming down from the high Sierras, bringing a constant flow of water into this valley.

At the same time see the location of the railroad lines, and of the prosperous towns, Bakersfield, McKittrick, Taft, Maricopa, Buttonwillow, Wasco, Corcoran, Coalinga, and not far to the north, Fresno. Take a trip to Buttonwillow from Los Angeles, noting the time and the mileage. Realize that the products of these "crop certainty lands" have the big city markets as well as the smaller city markets within reasonable truck hauling distance.

And when you go to Buttonwillow, keep your eyes open; see where cuts have been made and observe the depth of the productive soil—how far down to hard pan; ask the farmers how far down they go for water, and whether the water supply is ever too far down for pumping.

If the writer of this advertisement was a farmer seeking a home where income for the present and savings for the future were the objects, he'd turn himself into a human question mark. He'd seek the facts for himself. And he'd do these things on the ground, using his own eyes, ears and judgment. You are invited to investigate these Kern County "crop certainty lands" in just that way. Meanwhile, use the coupon.

PRESIDENT GILL TAKES OFFICE

Mexico has a new president, Emilio Portes Gil. He is the provisional executive officer who will serve one year until the regular president is elected.

President Gil is ushered into office under the most auspicious conditions which have existed in Mexico for a number of years. In making this statement, we have particular reference to the relation which exists between Mexico and the United States. President Gil's statements and program, as evidenced by his address of acceptance, will be supported, we believe, by the Mexican people, and will receive approval by our own. He is absolutely right when he declares that on the question of sovereignty, Mexico cannot make concessions and we do not believe that the officials of the United States will desire or expect her to do so under any circumstances.

There have been times when the demands upon Mexico have been such as to seriously raise the question of her sovereignty. The tension has been great and we have been apparently on the verge of the breaking of diplomatic relations preliminary to more serious conditions, when the difficulties were passed over and readjusted.

Another ruling by the government in respect to property rights was about to be enforced two years ago. The change of representatives of the United States from Mr. Sheffield to Mr. Morrow distinctly favored a peaceful relation and working out of our difficult problems as neighbors along the lines of good will. President Gil refers to Ambassador Morrow in that respect when he says, "Fortunately, the wisdom and patriotism with which President Calles and Ambassador Morrow have served their respective countries have erased distrust and created a mutual understanding which, with all my heart, I desire may continue."

It is well to note also, in that revolutionary and war-ridden country, the president's plan is to emphasize the teaching of history from a peace and not from a war point of view. The president's emphasis on the thought of being loyal to the nation as distinguished to the loyalty of individuals or to one man is a fine note to stress in Mexico.

Mexico is a country given over to the distressing contest between factions whose strength lies in the loyalty of the followers to the leaders, and to many it has seemed that the success of the president-elect is not due to the spirit of the nation electing their leader but rather to the winning of a faction or a group. If President Gil keeps this in mind he may bring out of their turmoil and difficulties, national patriotism, which is much needed.

The president promises the adherence of the government to the constitution; that the state will take no part in the presidential election of next year, and the continued effort for the betterment of conditions for the workingman. He made no reference to the religious difficulties in Mexico. The religious trouble is probably the most difficult one to solve. President Gil does not suggest anything that gives us a basis upon which we can pass an opinion as to what will be done in this respect, but it is to be hoped that this vexed question will be met by all parties concerned in the same spirit with which the difficulties of America and Mexico have been taken care of through Ambassador Morrow. Through that same plan, which is mutually satisfactory and in harmony with the separation of church and state, the people shall receive the benefit of religious leadership and teaching which they have missed so sadly for the past three years.

The dispatches say that President and Mrs. Coolidge dined alone on a 30 pound turkey yesterday. Can you imagine? There will be more turkey hash now. Will the bell hop please page Will Rogers?

WHY THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE SHOULD BE ELIMINATED

If a change is to be effected in the constitution whereby the Electoral College is eliminated and the people vote directly for president, then the voters of the nation should be treated as a group without consideration of state lines. The electoral machine, as it is now run, is cumbersome and worthless. Up until 1824 it fulfilled the purposes for which it was designed but now for nearly two hundred years it has served no good purpose and is really archaic.

The tremendous means of communication we have in America today, with our splendid public school system, with our rural mail delivery, and with our peerless news-gathering organizations, the humblest son of toil living in the remotest township, in the most sparsely settled state of our Union, receives his daily paper and other periodicals that tell him the happenings of men and states and nations with detail and accuracy that were positively unknown to the best informed men who lived in America in the days of the founding of the Republic.

The people are well equipped to vote intelligently and directly for president and in fact of course the members of the Electoral College exercise no judicial function whatever. A number of our presidents have been elected by an Electoral College vote while the majority of the people of the country have voted for the candidate who lost.

President Rutherford B. Hayes was made president of the United States while Samuel J. Tilden received a majority of the votes cast for president. The same situation occurred at the time Grover Cleveland ran the second time. Benjamin Harrison was elected by the electoral vote but Mr. Cleveland received 150,000 over Harrison in the country.

It is the condition of affairs that causes the politicians to concentrate upon the states in national campaigns. Voters do not count as individuals in the nation. Hence a campaign of general information and intelligence is not sought after, but money and men are jammed into the doubtful states and in the state with the largest electoral vote because the prize of the electoral vote is sought.

We believe that President Hoover will do well to aid in modernizing our constitution in this respect.

THE NEW REPARATIONS DEAL

It has become apparent, as it was prophesied when the Dawes plan of reparation payments by Germany was put into effect, that Germany will not be able to meet the requirements of the agreement. The time for the maximum payments under the plan has come, and Germany will be unable to meet them. This impossibility makes necessary a re-opening of the whole matter of German reparations, a question from which the United States cannot hold itself aloof.

As one of our foreign correspondents puts it, the whole plan revolves around the debts owed by the European nations to us. It is well known that we have asked nothing in the way of reparations from Germany. England also has not asked Germany for any payments. England is interested in German reparations only so far as she may be able to collect from France and Italy the amounts owed her by these countries to pay her debt to the United States. France and Italy want German reparations only so far as they can pay England and the United States what they borrowed during and immediately after the war. In addition France would like just so much as to cover the expense of restoring the devastated area occupied by the Germans during the war. The matter of punitive indemnities seems to be entirely dismissed. The idea of assessing Germany $33,000,000,000 is now seen to be absurd. It could not be collected without demoralizing all the currencies and the industrial conditions of the nations involved, while at the same time destroying Germany completely. It is quite apparent that there is no intention of the United States to cancel the war debts. Whether a reduction of these debts, in addition to those already made by the debt settlement commissions, is possible, is however still an open question.

It is this latter point which brings the interests of the United States into the coming conference to revise the Dawes plan. The Dawes plan has given time to get the facts, and also for the nations demanding reparations to cool off. They have learned something since the futile Ruhr occupation. It should be said that Germany expects to pay, but she wants the amounts to be paid to be the result of mutual conference. To impose the amounts would simply put off the final day of settlement, and make an uncertain Germany less able to meet any obligations. What seems to be most necessary at the present stage is to fix a sum for the entire bill which Germany can pay. At present she does not know what is finally to be expected of her; and until she does know the troublesome problem will continue to bob up to vex not only Germany, but all the nations involved in the reparations plans.

DEFINING CHOCOLATE

The United States Department of Agriculture holds that chocolate is a food, the United States court in Philadelphia says that it is candy. Six million dollars in taxes paid by chocolate manufacturers will be returned to them if it is decided in the circuit court, where appeal has been made, that chocolate is food.

The District Court stated that everyone agrees that chocolate is candy: "Probably nine people out of ten would so characterize it!" Even to their own undoing, the boys and girls more interested in the chocolate than the sequence of argument would characterize it as candy. But as counterbalance, is the opinion of arctic explorers who recommend the eating of chocolate because it produces energy, and because of its food value. The reason of the great appeal of arctic exploration from earliest childhood is the idea, early come across, that the explorers munch chocolate as they trek along.

If this decision was for the arctic zone we are sure it would be food. But of course, the decision is for our climate and not the arctic zones.

We hope the decision is made that chocolate is a food before Christmas. It will be a fine Christmas present for the kiddies, they will like chocolate just as well and maybe they will get more of it.

Argentine President a Weird Personality

Sacramento Bee

One of the most outstanding personalities whom President-elect Herbert Hoover will meet on his South American trip is Hipolito Irigoyen, recently inaugurated president of the Argentine, after being out of that office for six years, owing to a constitutional ban on continuing presidential terms.

Irigoyen was formerly a teacher of sociology in the University of La Plata.

The simplicity of his life has not been affected by his success as a popular leader.

During his first term in the Pink House, the "White House" of Argentine, he made it a practice always to keep open one door into his private office where anyone with a grievance to air or cause to present found ready admittance.

On the occasion of his first inauguration, President-elect Irigoyen was carried to his new home on the shoulders of his enthusiastic followers. He raced away this time to avoid a similar display of affectionate admiration.

President Irigoyen is a Progressive.

He has announced that one of the leading policies of his new administration will be the nationalization of the Argentine oil fields.

Ruler For Seventy Years

Oakland Tribune

Attention is attracted to Prince Johann II of Liehtenstein, not because of any outstanding act of his or the size or importance of his nation, but because he has held office for seventy years. Considering those things which have taken place in Europe it is remarkable that throne and crown still belong to a man who took his place when Lincoln was still a lawyer in Springfield, Illinois, when the Dred Scott decision was a national issue, and when Victoria had just been proclaimed Empress of India.

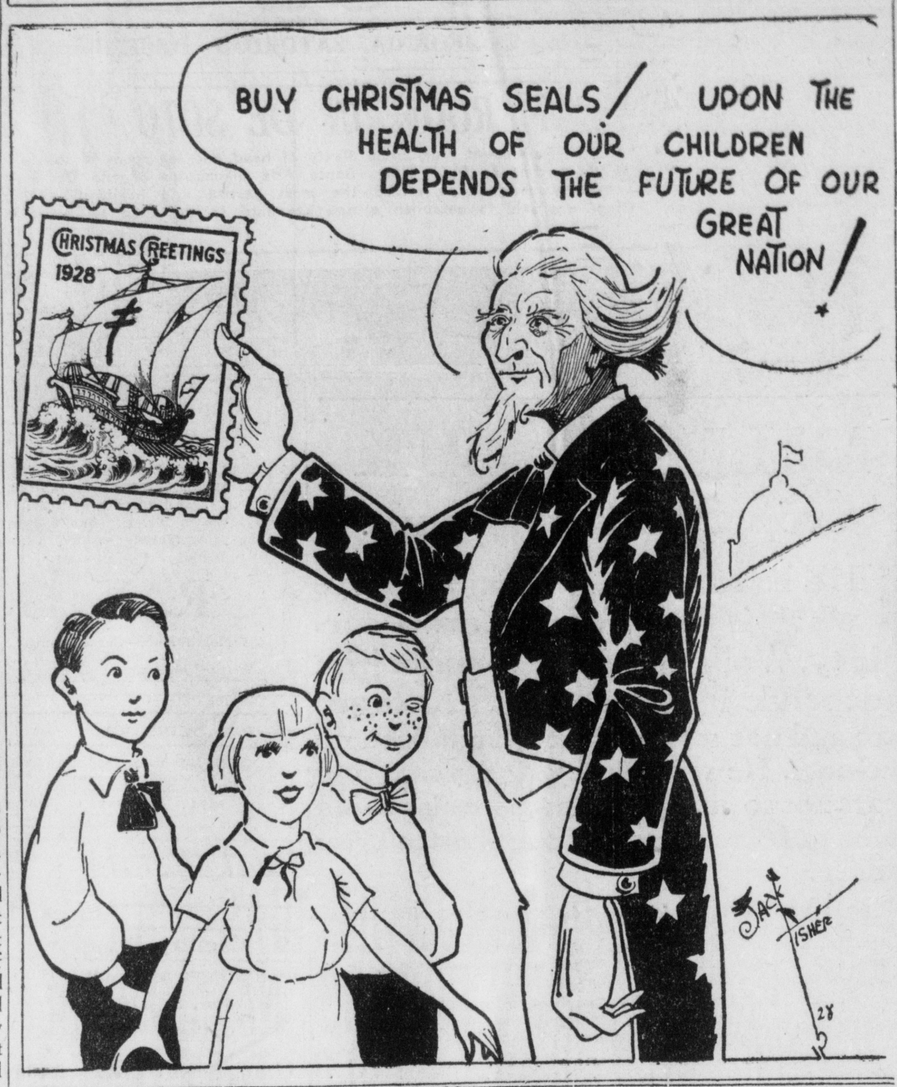

Liehtenstein is tucked away in a mountain valley between Switzerland and Austria. . . . .

Bringing Hardships On Fellow Unfortunates

San Francisco Chronicle

The Orange County convict who escaped while being taken to visit his dying wife probably thinks he played a cute trick. But it was an exceptionally mean trick, not on the deputy who had him in charge but on a lot of poor wretches who were fellow convicts. The mercy that led the authorities to grant the dying woman's plea is not encouraged by the convict's treachery. The next time such a case occurs a convict perhaps more deserving than the runaway will have to pay the penalty.

Protect Our Children

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

'TIS FOLLY TO BE WISE

I used to think that if my pill
Could lightly skim across the water
And clamber from it with the skill
Of an alert and agile otter,
Instead of plunging in the mud
And lying there, inert and logy,
A heavy, unresilient dud,
I might sometimes get under bogey.
I used to think those numbered sticks
Which men now ply with eager ardor
Could, of themselves, hit shrewder licks
And cuff the ball a whole lot harder.
"Could I afford such clubs," I said,
"The distances I'd coolly measure,
Lay all of my approaches dead
And play the game with some real pleasure."
Alas! I might as well have thought
That not another thing I needed
But Corot's brush to paint, untaught,
Such zippy little things as he did.
With Babe Ruth's bat I might have hoped
To win the plaudits of a nation
Providing I had first been doped
With such a fatuous elation.
Let balls be weighted, more or less,
Let clubs be changed in form and fashion,
I still shall hook and slice and press—
A figure for the world's compassion.
Yet hope within me cannot fade,
Defeat my soul can never fetter;
A thousand awful games I've played
And still I think I MAY do better!

By Dr. Frank Crane

THE PASSING OF THE HORSE

It seems as if the day of the horse is about over, at least in the city.

For centuries the horse has been the symbol of speed and power. He was transportation. The oldest sculptures represent rampant battle steeds, and heroes have generally been sculptured riding on horses.

But this age of motor cars is finding him too slow. We may love horses and delight in them, but apparently they are bound to go.

Agitation is now taking place in London to ban the slow-moving horse-drawn vehicle from the crowded streets.

One daily paper says: "Officialdom stands by idle while every day lumbering horse-drawn vans and carts cause long traffic blocks in congested thoroughfares. The loss and inconvenience caused by the traffic delays are incalculable, and yet nothing is doing to ameliorate the nuisance."

The greatest congestion seems to be caused by delivery trucks which are parked outside shops while goods are laboriously unloaded regardless of the fact that traffic behind is reduced to a single line and a snail's rate of progress. There is trouble also at bridges, tunnels, crossroads and steep inclines.

One remedy suggested is to tax horse traffic the same as motor vehicles. One man writes: "I consider it very unfair that only mechanical vehicles should be taxed. Large numbers of men have to be employed to keep the streets clean, but the horse owners contribute nothing to the cost. Tax the horses and they will disappear."

In some congested regions of Paris, such as the Place de l'Opera and the Place Vendome horse traffic is banished within certain prescribed hours.

The indictment against the horse seems to be that he is slow and that he is dirty.

There is strong support for the suggestion that London should follow the example of Paris.

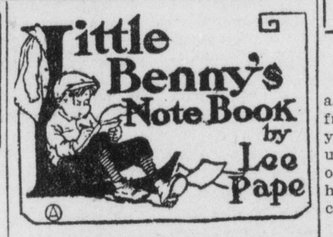

Others would banish the horse if only for the sake of the animals. One cannot watch without pity horses struggling on the slippery streets.

They are often stationary in the traffic blocks with their noses just above the exhausts of motors giving out foul fumes which have been known to kill human beings.

Altogether it looks as if this age of rapid transit is going to do away with the horse, which has been called "the greatest friend of man."

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

THE ART OF SELF KNOWLEDGE

The ancient Greek philosopher considered the will and the wisdom to know ourselves accurately and without illusion an art that is at once the most desirable and the most difficult.

Robert Browning, in his poem, "One Word More," which he wrote to his wife, said:

"God be thanked the meanest of his creatures
Boasts two soul-sides, one to face the world with,
One to show a woman when he loves her!"

Albert Edward Wiggam, in a series of interviews with distinguished psychologists, just published under the title of "Exploring Your Mind," suggests that Browning did not tell the whole story, that a man has three soul-sides—the third being the one he faces himself with.

Mr. Wiggam is adding the side the Greek philosopher had in mind when he said "Know thyself!" to the two sides Browning had in mind when he wrote his "One Word More" to his wife as his "moon of poets."

Certainly two of the most valuable assets a man can have are the ability to judge himself honestly and to weigh his fellows accurately.

Too often these twin ventures in judgment are left either to our private hunches or to the professional hokum of character reading "experts" who are in virgin innocence of the solid researches of modern psychology.

But our personal happiness and our professional success alike depend upon our going past both hunch and hokum to the accurate and dependable advice the modern psychologists can give us in the art of knowing ourselves and our fellows.

Here are come conclusions in this field that have been reached by Professor Harry Foster Adams of the University of Michigan, as reported by Mr. Wiggam:

It is a harder job to judge yourself honestly than to judge your fellows accurately.

If you are a good judge of yourself, you have had the courage, ability, poise, honesty, trustworthiness, self-command, resoluteness, common-sense, and capacity for observation to look yourself in the face without blinking.

If you consistently over-estimate yourself, you probably lack sympathy, courage, optimism, consideration of the rights and feelings of others, capacity to stick in an emergency, evenness of temper, and strength of will.

If you consistently under-estimate yourself, you probably have courage, intelligence, happy disposition, ability to keep an even keel of human nature, and general trustworthiness, in greater measure than the average person.

In a business organization, the man who judges others better than he judges himself is best placed when his task is to pick and place employees; the man who judges himself better than he judges others is best placed when his task is to train and to manage; the good judge of others is a good director; the good self-judge is a good inspirer.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

FREE YOURSELF FIRST

Before you can help a child, any child, much, you must first free yourself. I mean that unless you are riding on your spirit, unless you have control of your own body and mind, you cannot help any child to the free use and control of his.

Suppose it is the baby of about a year. Creeping about he gets underfoot, he pulls things down, he cries at inopportune times. Worst of all he develops a habit of pounding things. Again and again you take the thing out of his hand, put something else into it and start him again. In a few moments he is pounding again.

Can you take a long free breath, can you feel your body sway with the grace and strength of a young birch tree? Can you say in the back of your mind, "This is a baby learning to feel his arms and legs working. He needs to have that feeling just now in order that he may work and talk and use his hands and his feet and all the rest of him. I am to help him without checking him uselessly or harmfully."

If there is any tension in your body or your mind, if you feel that your neck is stiff, (remember what the Bible says about the stiff necked?) if your back is rigid, if your jaws are clenched, don't attempt to correct or help the baby.

Wait a moment. Adjust yourself. Get hold of some thought that relaxes the tension. Say the Beatitudes; repeat your creed; say over and over, I am free, I am under control, I can control my mind and my body. Say anything that will help you ease off the tension.

Tense people harm children. A tense mind and body in the room with a child causes fear in the child, instinctive fear, and the child's body tenses. You cannot teach a tense child anything. To attempt it is to waste your energy and his. Wait until he and you are at ease with the energy flowing free. Then there will be an open channel of communication between you and each can hear what the other says. Only when there is ease and peace between you can you help you help a child.

There is to be no anger in your heart, no fear in your soul. Only a feeling of power and peace. This is a counsel of perfection, that is true. We cannot acquire merit in a day, nor a year. But we can work toward it. You will be quite an old man or woman before you have grown the spirit that is filled with power and knows peace.

But then, what of it? You did not expect to be quite done with living or with growing when you become a teacher or a parent? You expected to live and learn and grow with this child? So daily you strive to free yourself from tenseness, from rigidity, from fear, and fill yourself with hope and faith and cleave to your high purposes.

Steadily day by day, we free ourselves in freeing the children whom we serve. And that is what we should be doing.

ON THE SIDE LINES

Which May or May Not Be In Accord With the Views of The Register

By Horace McPhee

HIS BIGGEST FIGHT—The news reports of political activities during the recent campaign told many a story of interest regarding men who triumphed over untoward and unfortunate circumstances simply because they were blessed with the Heaven given gift of being able to fight against, and finally overcome, misfortune.

One such story comes from Little Rock, Arkansas, where two cripples were nominated and elected to high state office—J. Oscar Humphrey, who has been armless since he was six, for state auditor, and Earl Page, legless since he was five, for commissioner of mines and agriculture. Each man has surmounted his handicap nobly. Humphrey can write, run a typewriter, drive a car and go hunting, despite the fact that he has no hands. Page, as a boy, rigged up a goat-drawn cart, sold papers and put himself through business school. Each is successful and happy.

Nearer home we have the case of Buron Fitts, who resigned as lieutenant-governor of California, to run for district attorney of Los Angeles county, to which position he was triumphantly elected at the primary election.

Mr. Fitts went over-seas, as did many thousand other American boys, to fight for his country. He got back crippled for life by wounds sustained in action. But what might be considered as a "total disability" by some was not so looked upon by Buron Fitts. He went back to his law practice, and kept at work at all times excepting only the not infrequent occasions when he had to go to a hospital for treatment of his wounds. This done, he went back to work.

When he became a candidate for lieutenant-governor of California, in 1926, he was victorious, for the people of California had found out something of the caliber of the man.

Later, when political conditions in Los Angeles had become so corrupt as to demand a general clean-up, Buron Fitts was chosen for district attorney in order that the work might be in charge of a man of unquestioned ability, honesty and fearlessness.

The people of California, or at least a huge majority thereof, are hoping that Buron Fitts may be again crowned victor in the fight he has now gone into—the biggest of his career.

SAYS 1928 WILL SET RECORD IN AUTO INDUSTRY

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1928, by International News Servive)

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors corporation, which this year has established a high record for profits that no other industrial concern has ever approached in peacetime, predicted in an exclusive interview with the writer today that "the automotive industry in 1929 will experience the biggest year it ever had."

"What is the prospect for business?" he was asked. "Do you see anything ahead that will interfere with the prosperity that exists in America today?"

"I do not see any influence tending to reduce the present trend of industrial activity," he replied. "As far as the automobile industry is concerned—and it is a very important factor in the prosperity of the country—I believe 1929 will be the biggest year we have ever had."

Mr. Sloan was seated in his sumptuous office on the twenty-fourth floor of General Motors building overlooking Central park. Here this tall, slender, keen minded executive of 53, directs the greatest business organization that has ever been formed, exceeding that of Henry Ford, and of the United States Steel corporation. The records show that General Motors in the first nine months of this year earned a net profit of $240,534,613. These earnings for the first nine months not only exceeded the total for any like period in the corporation's history, but they were greater than ever shown for a fully year in peacetime.

"What will be the total volume of busines of General Motors for 1928?" Mr. Sloan was asked.

"Between $1,500,000,000 and $1,-750,000,000," he replied.

Of that staggering total the export business will aggregate approximately between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000.

This tremendous volume of business will "exceed substantially" any previous records made by the corporation, he said.

Mr. Sloan places the automotive industry on the same plane as agriculture in its importance to the welfare of the country. He regards the automotive industry as the greatest in the world. Four or five years ago it passed, in volume, steel and steel products, the next largest industry.

"The importance of the automotive industry to the prosperity of the country is apparent," said the General Motors chief executive, leaning forward on his desk. "It has passed steel. The wealth produced annually through the production of motor cars and the use of cars is approximately equivalent to the wealth produced yearly through the proces sof agriculture. This makes the automotive industry just as big as agriculture!

"I estimate that 10 per cent of the people of the United States are dependent, directly or indirectly, on the automotive industry for their purchasing power. That means that 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 people are dependent, directly or indirectly, on the automotive industry for their livelihood."

Mr. Sloan leaned back. He gazed out upon the towering structures of Broadway reflectly. His thought were interrupted by a long distance call. Then by another. Several important executives interrupted the interview to discuss a business matter. Stenographers and private secretaries came in and quietly laid papers, containing masses of figures, upon his desk. Obviously, in directing General Motors he is a very busy man.

"To what do you attribute the amazing development of General Motors?" he was asked.

His fine, rather heavily lined face, took on a thoughtful expression.

"First of all, we have a product that everybody fundamentally wants," he replied.

General Motors, as virtually every one knows, manufactures a variety of the best known motor cars produced in America. It has plants in more than 50 cities here and overseas. It has more than 18,000 dealers in 103 countries. It has nearly 60,000 stockholders.

"The measure of succes sof any institution or business depends first on having a fundamental demand," Mr. Sloan continued. "Second, it must have a reasonable amount of capital. And third, there must be proper management—that is, constructive management."

General Motors is an example in a big way of "Democracy" in business," he declared. He amplified this statement thus:

"I mean by that that no autocratic decisions are made on any question of policy or procedure. The policy is to get the best thought from the entire organization as to what should and should not be done. Any and all persons who can contribute to the welfare of the organization are welcome to express their opinions. We are more concerned in getting the best solution than from whom the solution may come. In that way we have the advantage of many trained minds rather than being dependent upon one individual."

Mr. Sloan modestly remarked at this juncture that "there is no genius in the management of our corporation." However, his associates are quick to attribute to their president the qualities that make for a business genius. They say he is eminently fair, an indomitable worker, a splendid organizer and the ideal type of executive to coordinate and crystallize the corporation's policies.

General Motors has about 100 executives and 210,000 employes, Mr. Sloan said. As chief executive of this great organization, Sloan "never issues orders." He "confers" and decides. He declares frankly that the organization has become so large and farflung that it could not be conducted succesfully if any one man sought to impos his will arbitrarily upon everybody else.

"I believe," Mr. Sloan said, "that there is some thought along the direction that the great industrial institutions this country is developing—that is, big business—tends to prevent the development of the initiative of the individual.

"This is not true in the case of General Motors. Our administrative policy is to place the responsibility squarely on the individual for operating the various units that comprise the organization. Those individual executives have equal or more opportunity to exercise their initiative than have the directing heads of the usual small busines concern."

SELECTON OF SALES MANAGER IS ANNOUNCED

John P. McKenzie, of Midway City, has been appointed sales manager of O. A. Haley, Inc., Chrysler dealer here, it was announced today by Hugh Haley.

McKenzie recently came to Midway City from Marshfield, Ore., where he was Chrysler agent for a number of years. Since arrival of the family they have been making their home with Mr. and Mrs. J. McKenzie, at Midway City. The me nare cousins.

O. A. Haley, president of the agency firm here, and McKenzie were in Los Angeles Tuesday where they joined a group of 500 agents and salesmen in viewing new Chrysler models. They also attended a banquet given the guests of the distributor firm in Los Angeles.

NEW OAKLANDS HAVE LATEST IN OILING SYSTEM

Proper lubrication always has been recognized as one of the foremost features contributing to the success of a motor car and, according to Charles Marble, secretary of Marble Motors, Inc., Santa Ana Oakland and Pontiac dealer, the new Oakland, while also paving the way to a new era in body design, was constructed with this in mind.

According to Marble, one of the severest tests an automobile's lubrication system can be put to is that of sustained high speed and, he says, that is just exactly the test Oakland was put to on General Motors' proving grounds before being introduced to the public. Every vital moving part of the new Oakland is bathed in a constant and regulated ow of oil, he declared.

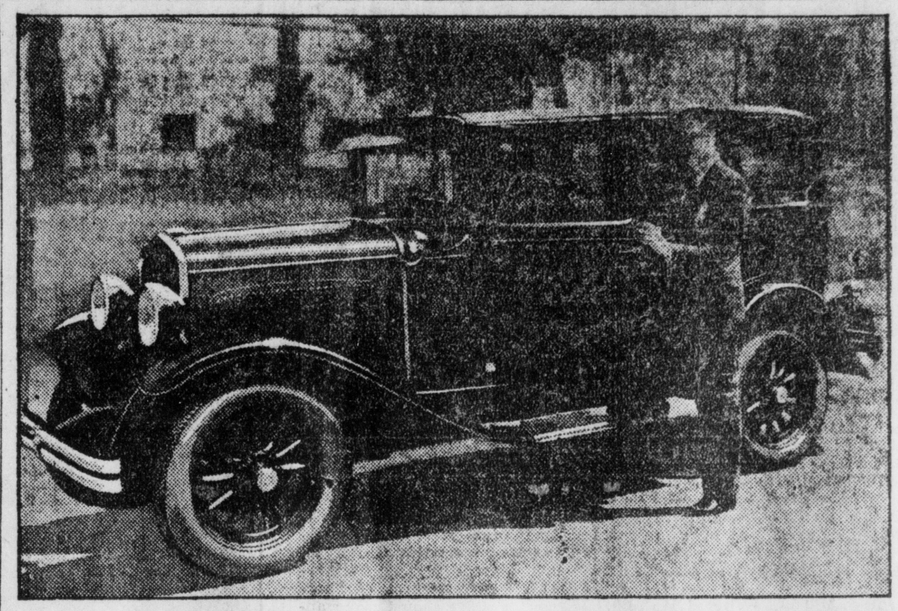

The new oil pump on the Oakland, according to the dealer, circulates 200 gallons of oil per hour at a speed of 25 miles per hour—practically twice the flow of previous Oakland models. Six quarts of oil is distributed by heavy oil leads through the drilled crankshaft and by spray through the interior of the engine. The connecting rods receive their oil from the srankshaft drill holes.

Leads out of the main bearings, Marble explained, feed streams of oil to the camshaft bearings and timing chain with pressure automatically regulated and indicated by a gauge on the instrument board.

The pump intake, it was revealed, is protected from outside impurities, such as water and dirt, by a cup in the oil pan and the oil is protected from dilution by the new crankshaft ventilation systemt, which removes water vapor before it condenses.

PLENTY OF ROOM IN DE SOTO

Even a six-footer like Jack Oakie, Paramount star, finds plenty of head and leg room in the new Chrysler-built De Soto six sedan, according to Paul Clark, Santa Ana distributor of the De Soto. He says seats have been scientifically designed to afford the most restful and healthful sitting postures while the interior fittings are said to establish a new standard in the field of moderate priced sixes.

FORD ENGINE GIVES UTMOST IN EFFICIENCY

"The four-cylinder, forty-horsepoder Ford model A engine is built to the most exacting limits and is designed to give the utmost in efficiency over a long period of years," says George Dunton, Ford-Lincoln agent.

"Every manufacturing operation from the casting of the cylinder block to the precise weighing of the piston and connecting rod assemblies, is carried out under constant inspection and under unusual precision requirements.

"The three-bearing crankshaft is special Ford carbon manganese steel, which is exceptionally hard and strong. It is statically and dynamically balanced. The flywheel is likewise statically and dynamically balanced. The five-bearing camshaft also is of special Ford carbon manganese steel, machined to precision limits. The timing gear is of bakelized fabric, insuring quietness in operation and long wear.

"Pistons are of aluminum alloy and piston pins are of the full floating type, an unusual feature. Connecting rods are carefully weighed for correct balance. Assemblies of pistons, pins and connecting rods are matched in weight to 3 1-2 grams, or approximately 1-2 of an ounce.

"Valves are of carbon chrome nickel alloy, specially selected because of its particular resistance to the oxidizing or scaling effects of hot gases, and ability to retain its strength at high temperatures.

The combustion chamber is so designed as to allow free passage of gases through the valves, and to produce turbulence within the cylinder during compression, thoroughly mixing the fuel. As a result, when the spark comes, the flame spreads at once through the whole fuel charge, resulting in quieter and more efficient engine performance."

WARN YOUR CHILDREN

Thirty-two percent of pedestrian fatalities in traffic accidents throughout the country last year were listed as caused by children playing in streets or disobeying traffic regulations.

CHAMPION OF GIRL DRIVERS IS DISCOVERED

Woman's driving ability has for a long time been regarded as a legitimate subject for jests, and it is generally conceded, at least by motorists of the masculine sex, that women not only lack judgment behind the steering wheel of a car, but they fail to concentrate on the business of driving.

A champion of the woman driver has been found, however, in Frank Hammett, Marmon dealer, who cites the findings of Robert Clair, of the National Safety council, and of Dr. F. A. Moss, psychologist of George Washington university, as authority for his stand.

"We have always been given to understand," said Hammett, "that one can never tell what the next move of a woman driver will be. The impression prevails that she is easily confused and is unable to think quickly in an emergency

"We are told that her attention is likely to wander and that her mind is anywhere but on the job—a phenomenon which accounts for the zig-zag course she is popularly supposed to take. I have always held the belief that the average woman is as good a driver as the average man, and it is reassuring to have my views upheld by a distinguished safety engineer and by a university professor. Women may be more emotional than men, but at the same time, they are more cautious and more unwilling to take chances.

"Mr. Clair reaches his conclusion after an analysis of the answer to a questionnaire sent out by him to representative groups of men and women drivers and to drivers of commercial vehicles. A decided majority of the replies show confidence in the fair motorist. A questionnaire of this kind records, of course, only an opinion. More scientific are the experiments undertaken by Dr. Moss to determine which of the sexes reacts more quickly to danger signals.

The result of these experiments convinced him that the women students selected for the tests were fully as competent and reliable as the men.

"As for myself, I can see no physical reason why a woman shouldn't be the equal of a man behind the steering wheel, and apparently there is no psychological reason. Accident statistics showing the proportion of women to men involved in crashes are hardly conclusive, as the former are greatly outnumbered by the men. Women, as a rule, drive more for pleasure, and generally avoid congested traffic. Nor do they run up as much mileage as the men.

"In some communities, even the larger ones, the woman taxicab driver already has made her debut, and, so far as my knowledge goes, we have yet to hear any complaints about her driving."

GAS SALES IN NATION HIGHER THAN YEAR AGO

For the first six months of 1928, 46 states and the District of Columbia, report a total sale of 4,652,393,535 gallons of gasoline, which is a gain of 680,970,224 gallons over the same period of 1927, according to information on gasoline taxation collected by the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture.

No tax was levied in Massachusetts and New York and a tax was in force for only one month in Illinois.

The revenue collected amounted to $140,635,398 which is $39,384,557 more than collected on the 3,971,-423,311 gallons sold in the first six months of 1927.

Nearly every state showed a gain in consumption. California heads the list with a gain of over 39,000,000 gallons and with an increase of one cent a gallon in the tax. Texas is second, with a gain of 38,900,000 gallons. Ohio is third with a gain of over 36,000,000 gallons and at an increase of one cent a gallon in the tax. Pennsylvania is fourth, with a gain o fover 31,000,000 gallons and at an increase in tax of one cent a gallon. Kansas ranks fifth with a gain of over 28,000,000 gallons. Montana, with 29,678,808 gallons, more than doubled her 1927 sales of 14,278,756 gallons.

In addition to the six states above mentioned, 11 others showed gains in sales ranging from 10,000,000 to 19,000,000 gallons.

CAR BALANCE AND SPRINGS ARE ESSENTIAL

Among the most important features of the modern automobile that owners insist upon having in their cars are riding comfort and road stability. Springs and car balance play prominent parts in providing these things, states J. W. Schwab, Whippet dealer.

Because of the springing arrangement and low center of gravity of four cylinder Whippet, that car has wonderful riding qualities, he points out.

"The Whippet Four is fitted with sturdy semi-elliptic springs made of very high grade chrome vanaidum steel," explained Schwab. "Their length is ample to cradle the body and reduce road shocks to a minimum. The front springs are 1 3-4 inches wide and 33 inches long, extending out in front of the radiator and holding the engine weight according to the most approved engineering practice. Snubbers are provided to give soft action.

"The rear springs are 1 3-4 inches wide and 49 inches long, ample to care for the rear body weight. Together the front and rear springs cover 82 per cent of the car's wheelbase or within 18 inches of the full wheelbase length. Because of the light unsprung weight underneath this car negotiates rough roads with amazing comfort.

"Miss Bernice Mortimer, film player, after taking a ride in a Whippet Four esdan over a couple of rough streets in Hollywood, could not understand why the car rode so easily until a pair of springs were laid along the wheelbase length and measurements taken. That told the story."

DEATH VALLEY TOUR POPULAR AT THIS TIME

This is the ideal season for a motor tour through Death Valley according to a report just issued by the touring bureau of the Automobile club of Southern California. Practically every day from October to late in April offers the most pleasant kind of weather with moderate warmth in the day time and clear, cold nights.

It is also pointed out in their report that it is no longer necessary to load the car to the brim with food and supplies, for with the increase in travel in recent years accommodations can now be obtained at six points in the valley area and there are a good many well distributed places where gasoline and oil are available.

Before leaving any one of these supply points, however, the club advises motorists to check their supplies, particularly of gas and oil, in order that theer be no chance of running out between points. It is always a good plan, besides, when journeying into any section of the desert to carry a small emergency supply of gas, oil and food.

While a motor trop into Death Valley and back again can be made in three or four days, only the major interesting and scenic points of the desert region can be seen in that time. Those who plan to see everything in the valley and get the most out of their trip will require at least six to seven days, according to touring representatives ofr the motoring organization who recently returned from the inspection trip of valley routes.

EXPERT EMPLOYED IN BRAKE SERVICE

E. L. Matthews, president and manager of the Orange County Ignition works, today announced the appointment of Orville W. Dant as service manager of the firm's brake service department.

Pointing out that Dant formerly was manager of the certified brake service, Matthews said that he believed Dant to be one of the most efficient brake experts obtainable.

"Dant is a factory trained expert and is a man whom we can recommend to our friends and patrons," Matthews said, in stressing the point that the department is prepared to do brake relining, drum fitting and brake adjusting.

The firm maintains a precision brake testing machine for free service in the testing of brakes.

COUNTY AGENCY TAKEN OVER BY SAN DIEGO MAN

Santa Ana's automobile row today had a new face in an old organization in the person of F. W. Stafford, who has come here from San Diego to take over the county distribution of the Willys-Knight and Whippet lines, succeeding J. W. Schwab as agent.

Incidentally, it may be stated that in the removal of Stafford to Santa Ana this city increased its population by eight persons, for there are four sons and two daughters in the family.

Stafford has purchased the agency of Schwab, who will remain with the organization as sales manager.

Commenting on his location in Santa Ana and his identification with the Willys-Knight and Whippet, the new agent said that he made extensive investigation of fields and egencies in the state, and that he had decided on locating in Santa Ana because indications point to rapid expansion of the city and increased wealth in Orange county.

"While residing in San Diego I became impresed with Santa Ana and Orange county because of the thriving communities and the general air of prosperity, to say nothing of the atractiveness of the cities from the standpoint of beauty," Stafford said. "I also found that lines chosen are popular in all sections of the state and I feel that in my selection of location and agency representation, I have joined the 'chosen few.'"

The new owners is effecting some changes that will add to the beauty and attraction of his agency headquarters, and he announced that he will make improvements in service that will be beneficial to owners of cars of the lines he represents, as well as patrons who drive other cars.

"Quick and efficient service—and with a smile, that will be the motto of my establishment," Stafford said.

The eagent is showing models of both lines at his agency quarters at 517 North Main street.

Pointing to possible completion of the manufacturing company's new factory by the first of the year as indicating that the company is preparing for a big volume next year, Stafford said that he was certain that prosperous Orange county would absorb any increased allotment the management might assign to this district.

INSPECTION OF TIRES ADVISED BY S. A. DEALER

Directing attention to the fact that most car owners gave their machines hard usage during the summer months, and directing attention to the possible necessity of overhauling most of the machines, Frank Schram, Dayton tire distributor at First and Cypress, today said that motorists should not overlook the fact that tires on their cars also need inspection.

Speaking of the importance of maintaining proper pressure in tires, Schram said that a 10 per cent loss in air below the regulation minimum for any make of tire causes 25 per cent excess wear, and that the waste increases to the disadvantage of the tire as the pressure decreases.

"We are glad to inspect tires and give correct pressure for all tires, without charge for the service," Schram said, and he added that inspection might result in discovery of a nail or pieces of glass that would do serious damage if permitted to remain in a tire.

LICENSE LAWS FOR AUTOISTS BEING URGED

With both stupid and reckless driving taking an increasingly heavy toll in human lives and property damage, and with public opinion throughout the nation insistent upoun the elimination of the careless, wanton few to whom can be attributed most of the blame for what is regardwed as becoming a more and more intolerable situation, demand everywhere is growing for the eneactment of full and effective driver's license laws as the most forceful means of bringing order out of chaos.

First among the national motoring organizations to step forth and call for the universal application of this remedy is the American Motorists' association with a statement which quotes its president, J. Borton Weeks, as saying that "no sound progress can be made toward traffic safety an dtoward the scourging from our public highways of the criminally-minded motorists who are making them paths of death and disorder until every community has upon its statute books a driver's license law."

"An adequate driver's license law, the kind that should be in force in every town and city in the country, first of all makes it obligatory for prespective motorists to take an examination upon the regulations and upon automobile operation," Mr. Weeks asserts.

"That means that no person would be permitted to take a car out upon the streets and highways unless he or she had a working knowledge of the regulations which have been set up for the safe and expeditious movement of traffic and also could demonstrate to a dully constituted authority that he or she was fully capable of handling a motor vehicle with all the safe efficiency demanded in this day.

CHRYSLER IN RECORD TRIP BEATS TRAIN

Charles Morehead, proprietor of the New Mexico Driverless Car Co., of Albuquerque, holds the unique record of giving the Chief, crack limited transcontinental train of the Santa Fe system, a start of 50 minutes out of town and beating it to Los Vegas, 145 miles distant, according to O. A. Haley, Chrysler distributor.

"Miss Margaret Alexander, Los Angeles nurse, embarked from the train at Albuquerque to visit friends," Haley said. "Returning, she found it had departed. On being informed that she had a patient aboard it in her care, Morehead agreed to undertake what appeared an impossible task. Before the start could be made the train had been gone 50 minutes. Fifteen miles were lost detouring into Lamy in an effort, futile by seven minutes, to catch the Chief there. They reached Los Vegas 25 minutes before the limited pulled in, however, covering the 160 miles, partly occasioned by the detour, in 194 minutes.

"The car was a Chrysler '72' sedan, one of the Chrysler fleet in Morehead's garages."

NEW FUEL BEATS GAS

A new automobile fuel, said to be a combination of alcohol and water, is claimed to have 20 per cent greater efficiency than gasoline and can be produced at one-third the cost. It has been invented by Engineer Steiger of the Martini automobile factory in Switzerland.

"FOUR" IS DECLINING

Automobile statistics show that there are on the market at present 45 makes of 8-cylinder cars, 65 makes of 6-cylinder cars and but five with 4-cylinder engines.

WHIPPET SPRINGS ARE FEATURED

Miss Bernice Mortimer, screen player, calls attention to springs of Whippet that cover 82 per cent of the car's wheelbase.

FUSSY CAR OWNERS

Are sensitive to small defects. Anything nearly right is, to them all wrong. What kind of a finish do they expect on their car? They notice "Orange feel" in a finish and classify it as poor workmanship.

With the DUCO PROCESS we produce a plate-glass finish second to none, and but a very little more expensive than the poor finish and ever so much more satisfactory.

DODGE ORDERS POURING INTO DEALERS SHOPS

Price reductions of $150 to $250 recently announced on all Victory Six and Standard Six models have resulted in unusually heavy demands for cars from Dodge Brothers dealers everywhere, according to L. D. Coffing, Dodge Brothers distributor, here. Shipments have been speeded up to take care of orders pouring into the factory, and that November shipments will be one of the heaviest fall months in the history of the company.

"At these new low prices, a value never before offered in the industry is presented to the public" said Coffing. "All models are the latest types built by the company, and represent a wide selection of body styles and color combinations. The reductions as announced have brought a quality six on the market at prices formerly paid for a four."

Winter sports are being enjoyed among the Big Trees of Sequoia National park. A snow plough is keeping the roads open and the park is readily accessible at all times.

The Mill Creek road to Big Bear is now open, subject to the regular control hours. Some construction is under way near Camp Angelus and care should be used in approaching the numerous storm ditches, which have been installed.

The Arrowhead Trail to Salt Lake is rapidly being improved. There is now excellent oiled gravel highway from the town of Jean to a point ten miles beyond Las Vegas, Nevada.

TWO STATIONS USE SAME WAVELENGTH

The reallocation plunged WNYC, the municipal station in New York City, and WMCA, whose studio is in New York City but antenna in Hoboken, N. J., into a controversy. Both were assigned to 526 meters (580 kc). This was WNYC's wave since it went on the air three years ago.

The morning the reallocation went info effect found both broadcasting at the same time on the same wave. This was quickly stopped by mutual arrangement. A schedule was being worked out when the federal radio commission learned of the confusion and ordered the two stations to broadcast on alternate days unless they could agree to a time-sharing arrangement of their own pending appeal. Such an arrangement then was perfected.

Mayor Walker insists WNYC is entitled to a 24-hour service as a public service institution free from commercial features. Donald Flamm, of WMCA, asserts his station is entitled to three-quarters of the time.

NEW LICENSE PLATES READY FOR DELIVERY

The new orange and black license plates for 1929 are ready for delivery by the division of motor vehicles at Sacramento according to word received here today.

Motor vehicle owners of Santa Ana and vicinity should make application by mail immediately. This is far simpler and easier than making a special trip after the plates.

The procedure is the same as last year. Simply take your certificate of registration from your car, put it in an envelope with the amount of your fee and send both to the division of motor vehicles, Sacramento, Calif. Use bank drafts, certified checks or money orders but not currency.

This matter should not be delayed as a double fee is imposed by the law on delinquents.

The fee for ordinary pasenger cars is $3, the same as last year.

Here's the Proof of Quality

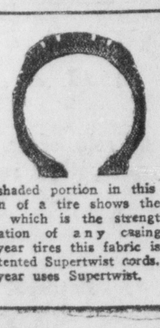

Let us show you this simple test.

Two cords of exactly the same length—one Goodyear-developed and Goodyear-patented SUPERTWIST, the other the usual standard cord—are placed on these machines. Exactly the same amount of strain is given both—then released. What happens?

SUPERTWIST snaps back to its original tautness like a rubber band. The other cord sags—remains inert. It has lost its spring. You see the comparative tension illustrated in the foreground.

We start again in the same way—fresh SUPERTWIST cord, fresh cord of the usual standard—both the same length. The strain is applied—increased. SNAP! the cord breaks, while SUPERTWIST remains intact. That's what happened on the machine in the background.

The shaded portion in this cross-section of a tire shows the cord-fabric which is the strength and foundation of any casing. In Goodyear tires this fabric is made of patented Supertwist cords. Only Goodyear uses Supertwist.

There's the proof of SUPERTWIST'S superiority before your eyes. Goodyear Tires, made of SUPERTWIST, stretch and recover under road shocks. Tires made of ordinary cord lack this resiliency and react as you have just seen.

The elasticity—the durability of SUPERTWIST has eliminated blowouts and similar troubles.

That's why we sell Goodyears—because we know they will stand the gaff of hard service.

Come in soon. It will be a pleasure to perform this interesting test for you.

BATTERY MUST BE WATCHED IN ORDER TO LAST

"Motorists often ask," said L. R. Rowell, the local Exide dealer, "why some batteries last longer than others. The answer is simple, they last longer because, other things being equal, they get better care and attention.

"Now a storage battery, as a rule, requires very little attention, but in these days of hustle and bustle, it is easy for a motorist to forget the little black box hidden beneath the driver's seat. As a consequence, most batteries are grossly neglected. Unfortunately, this tendency seems to be growing every day.

"Once it is installed, the average motorist forgets his battery until it begins to give him trouble. Then, and not until then, he takes it to a service station for a 'going over.' Usually when this happens, he is in need of repair work and may be surprised at the size of his repair bill.

"Large battery repair bills are unnecessary. The engineers of the world's largest manufacturers of storage batteries, the Electric Storage Battery company, claim that a monthly inspection of a battery will go a long way toward insuring maximum life. Furthermore, it will do much to keep down the upkeep costs."

LACKAYE MADE MANAGER FOR GRAHAM PAIGE

George Lackaye today was receiving congratulations of friends on his appointment to the position of sales manager for the Orange County Garage company, county distributors of the Graham-Paige line.

Lackaye has been salesman with the company for five years and recognition by the company of his services by promotion was made at the first opportunity for advancement. Lackaye will assume duties H. J. Gerken has been handling for a long time. Appointment of the manager will give Gerken opportunity to give personal attention to other features of the garage agency. Otto Kolberg, the other member of the firm operating the Orange County Garage company, now is devoting his full time to the company agency in Anaheim.

It was announced today by Gerken that Lackaye has just been awarded by the manufacturing company first honors in California in a sales contest conducted for two months. The competition was with salesmen in other cities similar in population to Santa Ana. In the national contest, for the same class of cities, Lackaye was third.

DANGER SENSE FORGOTTEN IN NEW CADILLAC

Security!

That one word alone is enough to spell happiness for today's motorist and that word is spelled with a capital "S" in the new Cadillacs and LaSalles, according to Otto Haan, president of the Cadillac Garage company, Orange county distributor of Cadillac and LaSalle.

In this day and age of good highways, fast motor cars and speed, Speed, SPEED, "mind east" is that factor which allows the motorist to settle down comfortably in an automobile and drive without endlessly sensing danger at the next crossroad, Haan declared, and added that that is exactly the factor that is making Cadillac and LaSalle more popular than ever.

"The new Cadillac and LaSalle cars," he said, "aside from being beautifully designed and mechanically sound, emphasize security and safety above everything else. The velvety action of the duplex-mechanical system of four-wheel brakes makes quick stopping certain and almost effortless from the driver's standpoint. The exclusive Cadillac-LaSalle syncro-mesh silent-shift transmission makes gear shifting a toy-like effort.

"Cadillac-LaSalle passenger or driver can forever dismiss the fear of injury from flying glass in the case of accident. All windows, doors and windshields are equipped with security-plate glass, which is constructed so it will not fly or splinter if broken."

1929 DURANT SMARTEST OF POPULAR LINE

A beautiful expression of modernity, staunchily built, new type body insulation that safeguards against squeaks or rumbles, sparkling chromium plating, graceful of line, smart new body moldings and panel louvres, voguishly finished and appointed throughout, more powerful on hills and faster in getaway than any former Durant four clyinder car—that is the new 1929 Durant, as described by B. E. Morthland, Durant dealer at 600 West Fourth street.

Morthland says that since announcement last week of the display of the new product, hundreds of men and women have called at his agency to admire and ride in one of the latest creations of the Durant plant.

"No other low priced car can approach the 1929 Durant four in modern appearance and modern performance," Morthland commented.

The dealer expressed the belief that the roadster and coupe would be popular with parties wanting a light car with capacity for four passengers when occasion arises for more than two persons. Pointing out that all models come fully equipped, Morthland said that nothing had to be added to the quoted price to make the cars meet the demand of any purchaser.

Commenting on the point that high gear power has been tremendously increased, the dealer said the getaway is much faster than that of any previously built Durants. These improvements were brough t about by making a change in gear ratio and by perfecting the semi-automatic spark control, Morthland said.

ACCIDENTS DECREASE

Twenty-three of the United States cities with population of 100,000 or more have had less accidents during September this year than during the same month last year, according to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

THE BIG ATTRACTION

California's four national parks—Yosemite, Lassen, Sequoia and General Grant—attracted one-fourth of the 2,522,188 persons visiting the 19 national parks of the United States during thsi year's travel season.

do you want $100 more for your old car?

Right now—this week—we can give it to you. Later on, in another week or two, we can't.

If you act now—you will have two things to be thankful for. You will own a new Super-Six, the six that leads all others in popularity, in volume of sales. And you will have bought it at a real bargain.

Leadership in quality has for years given Hudson-Essex outstanding public favor. And the growing volume has permitted economies passed on to buyers in price, far below any rival.

More than 1,000,000 Hudson-Essex cars in service, and this year the greatest sales in our history are simply the results of giving greater value than was ever offered at this price.

There can be no proof so convincing as the praise bestowed by Hudson-Essex owners, and the fact that these cars continue, as for years, the outstanding sales success of motordom.

Here is a chance to turn in your present car for more than it will ever be worth again. And—more important still—to own one of the first choice "Sixes," as proved by their sales leadership.

NASH DECLARES EUROPE PLANS CUT IN PRICES

American automobile manufacturers and the American industry geenrally will not have to guard against any European invasion of the field of Yankee motor car design and engineering in 1929, but lower prices on cars in volume production on the continent may be expected to add to American car competition overseas, in the opinion of C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors company, expressed in a letter to the Nash-Elb Motor company here following his return from a tour of northern European countries and the annual motor expositions in Paris and London.

"Mechanically there has been a marked improvement in European motor car design," he said in summing up his impressions of the two months' tour, which included not only studies of the Paris and London shows, but also inspections of key industrial plants in Sweden, Germany, France and England.

"The American industry is credited with remaining comfortably in advance in this respect and also with developing some of the most important of the mechanical features of the manufacturing year; but to my mind both French and English made cars are better today than they were a year ago, and their manufacturers have been able to considerably reduce prices of the cars that are produced in volume." One of the most important changes noted lies in the trend of the European coachwork.

"The bigger manufacturers in Europe and we in America are thinking more nearly along the same lines of design this year than ever before," Mr. Nash pointed out.

STUDEBAKER COMMERCIALS ARE POPULAR

Studebaker is experiencing one of the best commercial years in its entire history according to H. D. Riley, Orange County Studebaker-Erskine dealer.

"Much of the unusually large demand for Studebaker commercial cars, is due to the popular reception given the new one-tone panel delivery car which was recently announced," he said.

"This new delivery car is noteworthy for two reasons: One is its outstanding performing ability, and the other the style of design which it created for cars of its class."

Speaking of style in commercial cars, Riley said: "Business firms are realizinf more each day that their delivery equipment must do more than perform well. They realize that it must possess style, because they know that an attractive delivery car must possess style, because they know that an attractive delivery car causes much favorable comment and is a distinct aid in securing more business."

$50,000 HOME UNDER WAY IN HEIGHTS TRACT

One of the finest and most distinctive homes in all of Orange county is in the course of construction in Panorama Heights Estates, according to L. S. Leeson, one of the owners and developers of this exclusive residential property. It is the home of Mrs. Sarah C. Corbett and is to cost $50,000.

The architecture is to follow closely that of the Mediterranean Spanish type, rambling in nature, to consist of 12 large rooms, covering 6000 square feet of floor space. In part it will be two stories in height.

To carry out the true Spanish architecture of the Renaissance period, a wall is being constructer around the property which will conform to the contour of the land.

Mrs. Corbett's home will occupy two large estate located on the summit of the first unit of this picturesque subdivision, a location which is considered by everyone to be one of the choicest because of the unobstructed view it affords of the mountains, the valley and the sea.

Mrs. Corbett comes to California from Oklahoma, where she has large mining interests. Her present home is in Long Beach and she is disposing of this property so she will be ready to occupy her new home in Panarama Heights as soon as it is completed.

Mrs. Corbett was one of the first to select a permanent homesite here. She says she made her selection here only after she had seen and considered many other probable locations. Of them all she considers that Panorama Heights has the greatest advantages for future development into a highly restricted residential community, and because of its natural elevation, an ideal selection as a location for a permanent home in Southern California.

Michigan Opposes Free Lot Scheme

An order which has just been issued by the Michigan securities commission indicates its opinion of what is commonly called the free lot scheme for promoting real estate sales, a device which has been emphatically condemned by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The Michigan commission, which administers the Michigan real estate license law, has issued the following order: "It is hereby ordered that licensed real estate brokers or real estate salesmen practising in thic state what is commonly called the fere lot scheme are to be cited before this commissio nto show cause why their licenses should not be revoked."

Farm Realtors In Separate Division

Looking to a revival of activities in agricultural real estate, farm land dealers were given the status of a separate division within the National Association of Real Estate Boards by action of the board of directors, according to word received by Oscar O. Reed, from Fresno, new chairman of the California Real Estate association's farm division.

Unusual interest in this branch of realtor activity is expected in the coming year, due to the fact that the incoming president, J. Bradley Clayton of San Jose, is active in agricultural lines. A number of conferences on rural problems are being planned for the next several months.

REALTY VALUES CONTINUE GAIN, REALTOR SAYS

"The value of California real estate is constantly growing, the annual turnover representing nearly a billion dollars. With the increase in population seen in the last few years, the amount of land per capita is becoming scarcer. And with the influx of fundamental industries and new activities into our state our real estate development is steadily soaring. California now ranks as the seventh state in population in the Union, and has not yet glimps its zenith," Hal G. Hotchkis,s San Diego, president of the California Real Estate association, said in a statement just issued.

"This state ranks fourth in the nation in assessed value of real estate an improvements and has expended over two billions of dollars in new construction since the World war. It is still building at the rate of three hundred million dollars a year, five cents out of every rollar being spent in new building.

"The largest number of cities reported in the nation wide building survey are California cities, and six of the first 55 cities in building permits are in this state. The world's record in number of city, suburban and agricultural subdivisions has been made here.

"About one-fourth of the 220,000 real estate operators in the United States are in this state. Here they have expended the sum of $17,000,000 in regulation, education, and organization during the past 25 years. The California realtors sponsored the first real estate license law, which has since become the model for 23 other states.

"California is a billion dollar state in agricultural production, including $500,000,000 in crops; $276,000,000 in dairy products; and more than $200,000,000 in live stock.

"Some of our chief agricultural products are as follows: Barley, 27,335,000 bushels; corn, 2,464,000 bushels; wheat, 13,642,000 bushels; grain sorghum, 4,056,000 bushels; hay, 9,360,000 tons; oat s, 4,190,000 bushels; potatoes, 7,956,000 bushels; applies, 7,458,000 bushels; grapes 2,264,000 tons; oranges, 22,450,000 boxes; lemons, 6,400,000 boxes; grapefruit, 720,000 boxes; pears, 7,333,000 bushels; peaches, 20,500,000 bushels; sugar beets, 449,000 tons; onions, 3,086,000 bushels; cantaloupes, 7,557,000 crates; lettuce, 3,578,000 crates; cattle, 1,956,000 head; sheep, 3,528,000 head; wool fleece, 21,540,000 pounds; butter, 71,701,000 pounds, and also gives more, too numerous to mention.

"Our industrial prestige is growing and more and more national plants are opening branches here. Increased industries mean an increased payroll. The payrool dollar turns over 17 times a year, meaning greater wealth for the merchant, the banker, the worker and the farmer."

STATE ADVERTISED IN REALTY JOURNAL

The California Real Estate association, in carrying a series of display ads on this state in the National Real Estate Journal, official organ of the National Association of Real Estate boards, is inviting the co-operation of the major development organizations, including the All Year Club of Southern California, Californians Inc., the San Diego-California club and the Oakland Chamber of Commerce is preparing the advertisements, each featuring its particular part of the state so that every section is covered.

Realty Sales By U. S. Army During Year $3,116,374

During the fiscal year 1928 the U. S. army disposed of 8555.18 acres of land and buildings by sale for a total sum of $3,116,374.83, according to a statement which has just been made by the War department. During the year 722 buildings were salvaged, the material contained therein being used for repairing other buildings at the posts and stations wherever possible.

At the close of the fiscal year, the department further states, there were in force 1517 revocable leases and licenses for the use of government-owned property by private individuals with an annual rental of $726,068.

At the same time, there were in effect 554 leases for the use of private property by the war department having an aggregate rental of $416,662.70. This is a decrease during the year of 16 leases at an annual rental of $448.77.

RESIDENTS OF DETROIT MAKE LAND PURCHASE

Herbert C. Kellogg and Dr. Bessie A. Kellogg, of Detroit, have purchased a tract in the Orange Park Acres property, it was president of the Orange Park announced today by F. F. Mead, Acres company.

The Kellogs plan to plant their property to oranges and avocados, reserving a site for a country home.

Development work in the subdivision is progressing rapidly, Mead stated today. The company has purchased six and a half miles of riveted steel water pipe of various sizes. The entire distributing system is under ground under pressure.

The contracts for the water reservoir and the grading and madamazing of Orange Park boulevard, an 80-foot road, have been let, connecting the county park road and Pepper avenue. Trenching for the new water pipe is to start in a few days, Mead stated.

The 24-inch, 800-foot well at North Prospect avenue and Bond street on Santiago creek is nearly completed, 128 feet of water being in the well at the present time.

One-third of the property has been sold in less than 90 days, Mead said. The property is situated four miles east of Orange on the county park road.

KILN DRYING OF GREEN LUMBER IS DESCRIBED

How the quality of lumber that goes into California homes is graded was told yesterday by W. J. Anderson, authorized builder of Pacific Ready-Cut Homes, Inc.

"Kiln drying is a very important element in establishing the quality of lumber," Anderson said. "In our Huntington Park plant we have a battery of dry kilns each with a capacity of one carload of lumber.

"When the green lumber arrives from the northwest it has been cut only three or four weeks and it needs to be dried out before it is usable. It is carefully placed in the kilns and separated in a way that live steam and, later, air can reach every inch of the surface.

"First, a quantity of live steam is introduced into the kiln to open up the pores, then the moisture content of the kiln is gradually lessened by a scientific procedure until the amount of moisture in the lumber is reduced to five or six per cent. This leaves the lumber in a condition where it will not shrink or warp. To eliminate stil lmore moisture would leave the lumber brittle and of bad quality.

"Dry air is then forced into the kiln to season the lumber and insure uniformity throughout. Our process takes three days in all, whereas very frequently lumber is kiln-dried only abou tone and one-half days. And in situations where no kiln drying facilities are available, air drying must be resorted to. This takes from nine to 10 months to get similar results. The difficulty with the latter process is that the necessary time is seldom taken to dry the lumber thoroughly."

ARKANSAS DRAFTS REAL ESTATE LAW

A projected real estate license law for Arkansas, following the lines of the legislation already adopted for public protection in California and 22 other states and one Canadian province, is now being drafted by the Arkansas Real Estate association. The California law, which has served as the model for most of the others, was first put into effect in 1919. Members of the California Real Estate association secured its passage.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PAUL BEFORE HIS JUDGES

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for December 2. Paul Before His Judges. Acts 24:24-27; 26:19-29.

* * *

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of the Congregationalist

We have already dealt in our lessons with Paul's arrest in Jerusalem and with a portion of his defense. His arrest led to several addresses in which Paul had given us valuable biographical details and a fine exposition of his life, purposes and ideals.

The first defense was to the people at the time of his arrest, as Paul was permitted to speak by the chief captain. Next he appeared before the Jewish Sanhedrin, but the council broke up over the issue between the Pharisees and Sadducees which Paul astutely raised. Owing to a plot against Paul's life he was sent by the Roman authorities to Felix, the Roman procurator at Caesarea, and here the high priest and elders make accusation against him.

Felix, for purposes of his own, deferred the hearing. But in our lesson the crucical moment has come when Felix has called for Paul. On the judgment seat beside him is Felix's wife, Drusilla, a Jewess. As a matter of fact she was not the legal wife of Felix, for he had stolen her from King Emesa.

Daughter of Herod

She was a daughter of Herod Agrippa I, who had put to death the apostle James and imprisoned Peter. Felix, as the narrative shows, in addition to his moral looseness, was a grafter, a man essentially of weak character, who was never so pitifully lacking as in this contrast with a man like Paul, rigid in his moral honesty and sublime in the largeness of his character and aspirations.

As Felix slumped to the depths of his weakness and meanness, Paul rose to the heights of his greatness and spoke with patient earnestness, not only of his own innocency, but of the things of righteousness and self-control to which Felix was a stranger, and of the destiny inevitably associated with all immoral living which every weak man fears.

Was it any wonder that Felix trembled with fear, and like every weak man disposed of Paul without really making any decision, putting off the matter of judgment for a convenient season?

The convenient season never came. Felix gave way to his successor, Festus, who was a much better man, and Festus, taking advantage of a visit of King Agrippa, who was not adverse in Jewish matters, brought Paul forth that he might be heard. In many ways Paul's address before Agrippa is the deepest and most powerful of all his utterances concerning himself. All Paul's inherent statleliness comes out in his utterance, and though speaking with great courtesy, he speaks also with great boldness and definiteness, so that Agrippa apparently was mightily moved.

The Reply

There is some question among interpreters whether Agrippa's response to Paul was as in the Authorized Version expressive of the fact that Agrippa was almost persuaded to become a Christian or whether Agrippa was in very different spirit, replying to Paul's earnestness in a somewhat bantering spirit, "Wouldst thou persuade me to become a Christian?"

In whatever spirit Agrippa spoke, however, there was no mistaking Paul's reply. He came back at Agrippa with all the courage and power of his appeal. "I would to God that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day were both almost and altogether such as I am, except these bonds."

Paul's eloquence and persuasive argument did not alter his situation. He had appealed to Caesar, and to Caesar he must go. A higher Province was shaping his course, even in his bondage and adversity.

LAIR NO. 17 IS WINNER OF CUP OF COMPANIONS

The degree team of Paranaque lair No. 17, Military Order of the Serpent, commonly known as the "Snaix," and composed of members from Santa Ana and Pomona, called Companions, motored to Huntington Park and competed with Catacataca Paneulo lair No. 4, of Los Angeles, Saturday night, in putting on the work of the Katipunan or first degree. The prize was a loving cup presented by Ernest Hills, the second highest officer in the state, and won by a score of 60 points as against 57 points for the contesting Catacatacans.

This competitive degree work is the first of a series of competitions among the lairs of Southern California and to own the cup a team must win it three times in competitive degree work. Each winning team will have the name of its lair and the date of the contest etched on the outer portion of the cup. The next contest will be held in about four months and will be between Caloocan lair No. 22, of Huntington Park, and the present holders of the cup.

The judges were chosen as follows: Two from each of the contesting lairs and a fifth one from another lair and were: Charles E. Dixon, of Santa Ana, and John M. Fitwater, of Pomona, for Paranaque; Dr. L. E. Mulliken and James R. Smith, of Los Angeles, for Catacataca; with Harry Swinneford, of Huntington Park, for Caloocan lair.

Saturday night's team for Paranaque included Frank P. Rowe, Alfred F. Moulton, A. W. Mollica, Bert Deck and M. C. Cooper, of Santa Ana, and Companions Harris, Lusk, Griffith, Wein and Turner, of Pomona; while the Catacataca team was lead by Gu Gu, C. R. Judd.

Much credit was given to Companions Wein, Mollica, Moulton and Griffith for the success of the Paranaque team and the lair members have been discussing means to better the team for the next contest.

The Katipunan degree is taken from the native Filipino's Free Masonry organization, organized against the Spanish oppressor and headed by such men as Dr. Jose Rizal and Emilio Aguinaldo but a lot of fun has been injected into the initiatory work in order to make the "Snaix" a playground for members of the United Spanish War Veterans.

Two were initiated into the order. Guests of the chapter were Mrs. Henrietta Hardage and Oscar Brower, the matron and patron of Chispa chapter, Anaheim.

The next meeting will be installation of officers for the next year. Mrs. Sylvester will be installing matron assisted by the patron, Elmer Smith and the deputy matron, Mrs. Martha Shinn, who will install the star points while Mrs. Caroline Carter will install the incoming matron.

California's Crops Aided By Heavy November Rains

PROTECTION IS REQUIRED FOR PRUNING CUTS

In pruning fruit trees, all wounds an inch and a half in diameter or larger should be covered, says Prof. W. P. Tufts, of the college of agriculture, University of California. If a tree is properly pruned from the start, he adds, the removal of large limbs can, for the most part, be avoided; but if for any reason they are made, protection should be given the wounds.

"All cuts," says Professor Tufts, "should be made close to the branch from which the limb is cut, leaving no stub. This will greatly facilitate the healing of wounds.

Disinfect Cuts

"The treatment of pruning wounds will depend upon local conditions largely. In this section where foggy climate favors the growth and germination of fungi which cause wood decay, it is best to disinfect the pruning cuts as soon as the wood has dried a little, but before any cracks have formed. Cyanide of mercury, using one part to 1000 parts of water, is a good disinfectant. It should not be put in a metal container. Containers of wood, glass or enamelware should be used. Cyanide of mercury is a poison and should be handled as such.

"Where a disinfectant is used, the protective covering should be applied as soon as the disinfectant has dried. Where a disinfectant is not deemed necessary, the protective covering should be applied within a few days after making the cut. No sealing material can be expecte dto remain intact indefinitely, and therefore the orchard should be gone over occasionally, and the protective covering renewed wherever necessary.

Asphaltum Observed

"An emulsified asphaltum has been made under the observation of the extension service in Orange county, which apparently has all the advantages of the 'Grade D' asphaltum commonly used, and the additional advantages that it can be applied cold, and consequently is more convenient, as well as being possibly more durable."

In a recent talk, Prof. R. W. Hodgson, of the University of California, discussed the effect of pruning and fertilization upon yield. He first pointed out that the large number of elements required by plants for food precludes the possibility of a commercial "balanced ration" fertilizer inasmuch as the ratio of the foods required is constantly being changed in area and effectiveness of the leaf surfaces, and that the evidence at hand in consequence, precludes the use of so-called commercial fertilizers, or the use of chemical analyses to determine the food requirements of plants.

Nitrogen Important

The carbon-nitrogen ratio in the sail is of considerable importance in the production of fruit, Hodgson stated. Plant physiologists have found that if there is a deficiency in the carbon intake the plant is unhealthy, does not grow properly, and does not fruit. If the nitrogen intake is deficient, the plant does not grow properly, nor does it set a desirable amount of fruit. If, however, there is a surplus of carbohydrates manufactured in the leaves, which obviously requires a healthy large leaf surface exposed to the sunlight, and a sufficiency of nitrogen, the plans grows normally and is fruitful.

If there is a surplus, or more than enough nitrogen taken up to take care of the normal needs of the plant, the result is vegetative growth and lack of fruit bearing. It is found, therefore, that by excessive pruning the plant is changed from a condition of fruitfulness to one of vegetative growth. This has been shown to apply to the citrus fruits and to the deciduous fruits! it also applies to vegetables."

The proper fertilizers to apply, Hodgson concludes, are nitrogen and organic matter, "essentials in the fertilization of most of our soils."

CANADA WHEAT CROP

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—The downward revision of the official estimate of the Canadian wheat crop indicates that the effective millable supply of Canadian wheat from this season may be less than that from last year's crop. An official estimate this week places this year's crop at about 501 million bushels, which is 61 million bushels greater than the official estimate of last year's

Ladybugs Of State Not So Ladylike

OROVILLE, Calif., Nov. 27.—An army of California ladybugs was entrained today for a war in Texas that will be anything but ladylike.

The bugs were shipped by W. H. King, of Pulga, in the Feather River canyon, where ladybugs grow big and hungry. They were sold to Texas ranchers to wage war on mealybugs, and other plant pests threatening farm crops.

Ernest M. Coolidge of Yarnell, Wis., is a cousin of the president, but he's far from being the sphynx-like individual his famous cousin is. In fact, Ernest has won the championship in his community for cow-calling. He's shown in the act of "ko-boss-ss-ing" while holding the championship prize—a silver cowbell presented by the Blue Valley Creamery institute of Chicago.

LETTUCE BOOK OF UNIVERSITY RECEIVED HERE

Copies of the revised edition of the University of California's circular No. 295, "Growing and Handling Head Lettuce in California," have been received at the farm advisor's office for free distribution.

The revised circular covers the field thoroughly, starting with the economics of the industry so far as seasonal and total shipments for the United States and for California are concerned. This is followed by a discussion of the climatic and soil requirements, soil improvement and fertilization. Then the subjects of land preparation, varieties, and seeding are developed. The cultural practices, thinning and hoeing, irrigation and cultivation, are described. Yield, harvesting, packing for shipment, grading, standardization and inspection are described.

Finally insect pests and diseases are dealt with, together with the most satisfactory measures for control. The circular is illustrated with photographic reproductions of the operations involved in the various phases of the industry, and of the principal diseases.

PLAN COFFEE TEST FOR KERN COUNTY

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 1.—Believing the climaate of Kern county to be conducive to the successful growing of coffee plants, Laurence W. Taylor, farm advisor, is undertaking the experiment that may result in this region becoming a minature San Paulo.

Co-operating with Taylor in the attempt to produce the coffee bean here is Henry Breen, scientific garener of Oakland. Breen has been experimenting for several years with the plants, but has decided the bay district is unsuited for their growth.

Taylor has received seed for his experiment, and will have them plated at once.

APRICOT GROWERS RECEIVE PAYMENT

The California Prune and Apricot Growers' association reports the second payment on 1928 apricot deliveries completed and all checks in the mail. The accounting department is now working in the preparation of a second payment on prunes.

The apricot payment just completed averages from two cents to three ont a half cents a pound on all grade and classifications with the exception of certain offgrades. The prune payment is being computed at one-half cent a pound on all grades and classifications.

A sum in excess of $750,000 will be disbursed to prune and apricot growers in these payments.

DATE INDUSTRY IN CALIFORNIA ON FIRM BASIS

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 1.—Egypt, Arabia and Persia are facing serious competition in the date producing industry, from the state of California.

This state produces the finest quality of dates in the world, according to the state department of agriculture, which gave credit this week to Dr. Walter T. Swingle, of Washington, D. C., for developing the industry to its present position.

Dr. Swingle interested the United States department of agriculture early in the century in his idea of bringing date palms of the old world to the Coachella and Imperial valleys. So thoroughly did he "sell" them on his plan that the United States date gardens at Indio, Calif., were established.

Dr. Swingle, who is senior physiologist, bureau of plant industry, U. S. department of agriculture, is now in California to study the progress of the industry which he brought to this state, it was announced.

RECORDS CITED IN TUBERCULIN TESTS

WASHINGTON, D. C.,•Dec. 1.—Records of achievements in the co-operative testing of cattle for tuberculosis constitute one of the new features of the recent revision of farmers' bulletin 1069-F, just published for free distribution by the United States department of agriculture. Ten years ago, when the campaign was just getting under way, the tuberculin test was administered in one year to 134,143 cattle of which 4.9 were found to be reactors. For the last fiscal year the number of cattle tested amounted to more than 11,000,000 and the proportion or reactors had declined to 2.3 per cent.

The revised edition of the bulletin also notes the increasing favor in which the campaign is held by livestock growers and dairymen, and mentions that applications for testing are far in excess of the capacity of the available forces and appropriations, so that there is a waiting list of herd owners.

$20,000,000 COST OF RESEARCH WORK

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—Research work in agriculture in the United States, if measured by dollars, is costing about $20,000,000 a year. The returns are now amounting to more each year than the entire expenditure for all the work of the department and all the agricultural colleges in the country from htire foundation, dating back in some cases to shortly after the Civil war, up to the present time, according to Dr. A. F. Woods, director of scientific work in the United States department of agriculture.

The speaker said the demand for trained leaders in agriculture and engineering will be proportionately greater in the years ahead than at present, because agriculture and engineering have both entered their more intensive and scientific phase.

Boston Bean Pots Filled From State

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 27.—The proverbial bean pots of Boston are filled by California farmers.

Records compiled by E. E. Kaufman of the federal-state crop reporting service showed that California produces more beans than any state in the nation with the single exception of Michigan. The yearly crop averages more than a million and a half bushels.

Of the small white variety, California produces 95 per cent of the nation's supply. The large whites are produced mostly in Michigan and New York, while the pintos, or spotted beans, come largely from Colorado and Arizona.

Ninety-nine and one-half per cent of the lima beans produced in the United States are plucked on California vines.

FRUIT COURSE ARRANGED FOR DECEMBER 3-8

DAVIS, Calif., Dec. 1.—College training for the grape and apple producer of California will be provided by the University farm here from December 3 to 8, it is announced by the pomology division.

This short course is available to all grape and deciduous fruit growers in California, and will include studies and lectures on plant growth. The practical, business side of fruit growing will be emphasized, and it is planned to make this feature in economics one of the most valuable of the week.

SAYS DEMAND FOR FARM FACTS GAINS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—Declaring that the demand for agricultural information in the economic field is perhaps greater than in any other, Nils A. Olsen, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture, told the 42nd annual convention of the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities, at Washington, D. C., that "our first and foremost job is to help the farmer think in economic terms."

Farmers must realize, he said, that farms returns are vitally affected by economic forces; they must understand that supply and demand forces determine for any given crop the level at which products will sell, and not the cost of producing that crop; they must learn that economic conditions affecting their busines do not resmain static but change, and as they change they influence farm income at one time differently than at another time; and that economic forces affecting agriculture are not purely local in their operation but usually play over th ewhole gamut of competing territories, domestic and foreign.

KERN LEADING AS PRINCIPAL COTTON CENTER

So much emhpasis has been placed on the mineral wealth of Kern county, with its numerous and extensive oil fields, that its agricultural importance has probably not received the notice it is entitled to.

Kern county, however, has been fast coming into its own as a farming community. The crop for which it is mostly known is cotton. Kern county leads any county in the west and possibly in the entire United States in yield per acre, it was declared today. For several years it has produced more than a bale of cotton to the acre. When one considers that through the southern states and in the lower Mississippi valley, cotton yields per acre are from one-fifth to one-third of this amount, the success of this product in Kern county is easily understood.

A recent factor in the development of the cotton industry as well as other lines of agricultural products in Kern county, is the division and sale of the vast Miller and Lux holdings in the western part of the county.

Seventy thousand acres, which constitute the agricultural heart of the county, have been placed on the market. This rich land lies atop the greatest artesian belt in California, and is declared ideally situated for practically any crop. The long growing seasons and the mild maturing period, together with shallow lift wells amplified by an extensive canal system, getting its water from the adjacent Buena Vista lake, produce not only heavy yields of cotton, but similar heavy products of other crops.

The new town of Buttonville has already grown into a center of importance for this territory. Warehouses, lumber yards, stores, large school, church and many dwellings have already been constructed. This community has already proven an incentive for purchases of the land.

The proposed Westside highway, which in a few years will extend from Ventura on the south to the bay district on the north, will skirt the present M. and L. holdings. At present they are connected by paved highway with Taft, 20 miles distant, and with Bakersfield, 25 miles to the east. A railroad extends from Bakersfield to Buttonwillow.

An important feature of this year's agricultural activity on the west side of Kern county was a $300,000 crops of onions which was shipped by carloads to Chicago and many other centers in the east, and to Los Angeles, where they were shipped to Oriental ports.

TURKEY TROT FOR SACRAMENTO SHOW

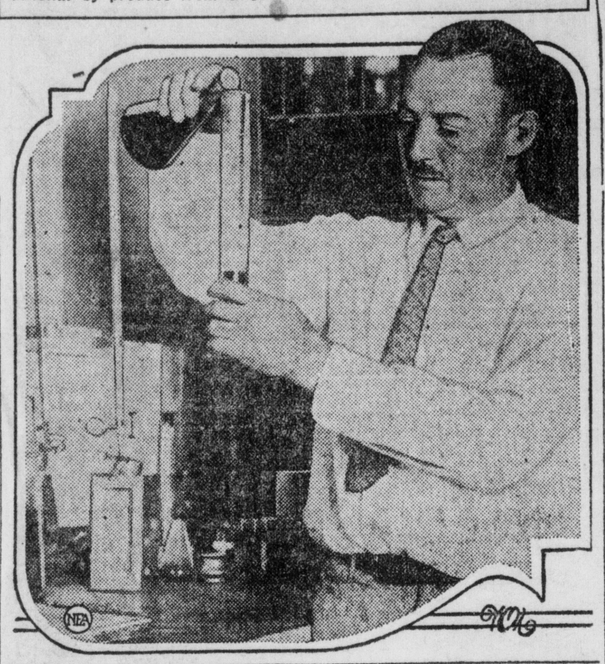

FAIROAKS, Cal., Nov. 27—With Calaveras county frogs non-stop-hopping and Oroville turtles preparing for a speed classic, Fairoaks just had to do something when the Sacramento County Citrus show convenes here Dec. 13 to 16.

Willard Warner, president of the Fairoaks show committee, finally hit upon the idea. A turkey trot now has been placed on the official program.

Several choice birds already have been given commutations of sentence from the Thanksgiving axe to get in trim for the 100 yard dash down the cinder path.

NEW APRICOT USES SOUGHT

Sewell S. Brown, head of a large apricot pit crushing plant near San Jose, is shown in his laboratory trying to discover an additional by-product from this fruit waste.

APRICOT PITS PROVIDING OIL AND CHARCOAL

SAN JOSE, Dec. 1.—Golden wealth from waste is the daily practice of Sewell S. Brown, who operates what is said to be the largest apricot pit crushing plant in the United States.

The Brown plant and laboratory represents one of the most valuable industries in this vicinity. It operates steadily from June to December, frequently extending over January, and has a cracking capacity of from 30 to 40 tons of pits daily.

Specially equipped machinery has been installed, which is critically adjusted to crack the pits with the least injury to the kernels. Carefully washed and separated from the shells by flotation the kernels are then assorted, after which girls working over moving belts carrying the whole kernels take out particles of shell that have escaped the separating devices.

The largest portion of the kernels are exported to European countries, while vast quantities are treated locally.

For Cakes, Cosmetics

Oil is extracted from the apricot kernels by pressure. It is stored in vats, receiving treatment, and any free fatty acids are removed. The remaining press-cake is distilled, prussic acid passing off in vapor, and the essential oil of bitter almon saved.

The press-cake is exported as a paste to Europe, where it is used as a substitute almond paste for making cakes, candies and macaroons.

Brown says practically all the kernels are sold to Germany, Holland and Scandinavian countries, where there is a tremendous demand for the oil which is used in the manufacture of choice cosmetics. Most of this has been sold to New York in the past, Brown asserts, while great quantities are at present going to London, he says.

Approximately 90 per cent of the crop, which runs to about 10,000 tons in California, is now exported in the form of apricot kernels for food consumption. The Brown plant handles about one-fifth of California's production, it is said.

Other By-Products

The shells from the apricot kernels at the Brown plant are used for the manufacture of charcoal, which was in considerable demand during the World war for use in gas masks owing to its absorbent qualities. It is at present in popular demand for water filters, and is widely used in the poultry raising industry.

The prodct has also been used b ya San Jose manufacturer for several years, who has extracted sufficient fuel in the process to operate boilers and supply steam for canning machinery. It is hoped that through further experimental developments, the production of acetic acid, wood alcohol and coal tar will be obtained from the shells from distillation.

Brown is looking forward to attaining similar results from the treatment of peach and prune pits, and plans to extend the industry as soon as developments justify. Owing to the adhering waste of fruit pulp, the cracking of peach pits is not profitable at present.

Prunes are not pitted in any quantity, but as soon as prune-pitting develops on a large scale and peach-pitting produces better results, pit-cracking will be increased at the Brown plant.

Bitter almond oil is found in both peach and prune pits, Brown declares and other valuable products may be obtained from these as soon as profitable conditions are assured.

COUNTY'S BEST FOWL RAISER? DON SCHNITGER

The best coultryman in Orange county.

Who is he and where does he live? Perhaps no one really can answer that question. But Don Schnitger, 16, prominent 4-H club boy, of Garden Grove, is the only poultry producer in this section who ever stood before members of the poultry department of the farm bureau and heard himself referred to as the premier chicken grower of the county.

Perhaps there was some good natured humor accompanying the awarding of the title. But there was a lot of foundation for it, too, according to Assistant Farm Adviser Eric Eastman, director of 4-H Agricultural club work in Orange county.

Young Schnitger appeared at the recent poultry department meeting to thank the members for the silver cup which he was presented for his outsanding club work during the past year. And that activity was concerned largely with raising .80 young white leghorn hens.

The cup was made on a four-point basis, namely, carrying out a successful project on a practical basis, having the best paultry display in the 4-H club Orange county fair exhibits; outsanding activity in his club, and faithful work as assistant club leader. He is the only four year club member in the county.

In thanking the poultry department for the award, Schnitger gave considerable credit for his success to his parents and to his leader's work in ET90$..oinoin leaders in club work.

DAIRY EFFICIENCY DECLARED U. S. NEED

DURHAM, N. H., Dec. 1.—The inefficiency at which dairy farmers in the United States are operating was brought out here by D. H. Otis, director of the nation banker-farmer commission, during a meeting at the New Hampshire State university.

In New Hampshire alone, Otis pointed out, efficient dairying pratice could reduce the number of dairy cows by 30,000 and still product as much milk. He gave further facts for New Hampshire, as an example of what could be done throughout the country.

"The average cow in the state gives only 4231 pounds," he said, "and while this is above the national production of 3549 pounds, there is no reason why 7000 pounds cannot be reached. This, we find in cow testing work, is the minimum amount from which a profit may be taken. And the cost of keeping good cows is but little more than for the boarders.

"In egg production per hen, too, New Hampshire with 81 is above the average of 56 a year. Flocks that have ben carefully culled by extension specialists throughout the country maintain an average of 135 eggs.

"Should all flocks reach even this degree of efficiency, the number of hens needed for the same egg production would be 170,000,000, or 239,000,000 less than we now maintain.

"When one considers that this same condition holds with beef cattle, mutton, swine and crops, it is evident that in spite of our 20 per cent increase in farm efficiency since 1914, we still have tremendous opportunities of increasing profits by increasing the output of the better farm units."

BIG INCREASE INDICATED FOR IMPERIAL AREA

By ED JOHNSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Special to The Register)

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 1.—Late fall crops throughout California with the exception of the desert valleys, received generous rains during the third week of November. According to Jack M. Evans of the federal-state crop reporting service, the rainfall was of great benefit.

Despite some injury to a few maturing crops such as lettuce, cauliflower and tomatoes, the general condition throughout California is decidedly improved over the reports of the early part of the month, Eakins stated.

A brief summary of conditions generally of truck crops, ac compiled by the federal-state service, follows:

Pears—Possible production in the Imperial valley this season will be 70 to 80 per cent greater than last year. In the Arroyo Grande-Pismo district there will be about the same early spring harvest as last year. November rains will be of benefit in producing good stands in San Luis Obispo county.

Fall lettuce—Heavy rains caused 25 to 40 per cent loss in the Sacramento and Woodland district. The San Fernando valley has started harvest but production will be less than last season. The southern San Joaquin valley will start cutting next week and a light movement is expected.

Cauliflower—With the exception of some damage in the crop ready to cut, the recent rains helped the cauliflower districts.

Celery—All districts of the state, including the Coachella valley, the Delta district and Chula Vista is now growing rapidly. A fine crop of high quality is expected.

Bermuda onions—Seed beds in all districts, including Coachella valley, Kern and Tulare counties, are in excellent condition. Transplanting is going ahead in Coachella valley. Farmers generally hope for a reduction under last season's acreage.

Tomatoes—The canning season is just about to close in all districts of the state. Northern California is practically through with shipments, while the south should decrease rapidly. The length of the harvest will depend on frost and blight. Yields generally have been a disappointment because of the light setting of fruit.

BOOKLET EXPLAINS NEW HOME DEVICES

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—Various labor-saving conveniences for the farm home may be made at small expense by anyone who has a few simple tools and the ability to use them, it was declared today. Most of these help save the time and energy of the housekeeper or add to her comfort, to the economical managemnt of her household, or its sanitation.

Among the most useful of these homemade conveniences described in farmers' bulletin 927-F, by Mdge J. Reese, of the office of co-operative extension work, are the kitchen cabinet, the fireless cooker, the dish drainer, the serving table or wheel tray, the folding ironing board, the iceless "refirgerator," the cold box, the fly trap, the cookstove drier or evaporator.

The bulletin, which is a revision of an earlier publication, is free upon application to the United States department of agriculture, Washington.

WGY GETS FULL TIME BY USE OF INJUNCTION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The court of appeals of the District of Columbia has granted the application of WGY, Schnectady, N. Y., owned and operated by the General Electric company, for a temporary stay of the order of the federal radio commission which would have placed WGY on part time basis.

The court ruled that the station should retain its "status quo" as a full-time station on the 790 kilocycle channel until the case has been heard on its merits and a decision rendered. The court set December 3 as the date for the hearing.

KGO, General Electric station at Oakland, Calif., had been assigned to the 790 kilocycle channel on a cleared-channel basis, while WGY had been assigned to the same channel as a "supplementary consideration."

The order of the court was as follows:

"Until further order of this court herein Radio Station WGY of applicant appellant is permitted to operate full time on channel 790 kilocycles."

Frank J. Hogan, counsel for station WGY, told the court that the stay would not interfere with the operation of the allocation plan as a whole, affecting only WGY and KGO. The provision of the allocation against which WGY complains, he said, is that it makes the station a part-time broadcaster, and requires it to shut down at sunset on the Pacific Coast, corresponding to 8 p. m. Eastern Standard time.

In filing the notice of appeal to the court, Hogan said that 2,400,000 persons would be deprived of satisfactory radio service if the order stood, and added that the commission has failed to serve "public interest, convenience or necessity," as specified in the Radio Act, and has failed to afford the General Electric company an opportunity to be heard under reasonable rules and regulations with respect to its applications for continuance of broadcasting service, and has otherwise "failed to comply with the provisions of the radio act."

Charles Evans Hughes will represent WGY.

FINALISTS

Irene Kilgore, coloratura, Oakland, and Donald Novis, Pasadena tenor, who will represent the west in the finals of the Atwater Kent audition.

547,000 Letters Received In Day

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The federal radio commission has received as many as 547,000 letters in one day. This fact was cited as an example of the public's keen interest in radio.

VALUE OF RADIO OUTPUT IN 1928 $191,848,665

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—According to data collected at the biennial census of manufactures taken by the department of commerce in 1928, the establishments engaged in the manufacture of radio apparatus and tubes in 1927 reported products to the value of $191,848,665, an increase of 8.4 per cent as compared with $176,990,334 for 1925, the last preceding census year.

The production of tube-type receiving sets in 1927 was 1,938,192, valued at $94,050,031—a decrease of 19.1 per cent in number and an increase of seven-tenths of 1 per cent in value as compared with 2,395,790 sets, valued at $93,356,546, reported for 1925.

Socket Power Rises

The production of socket-power devices in 1927 aggregated 1,405,191, with a value of $23,357,814, or 13.4 per cent of the total value of radio apparatus manufactured during the year.

The production of socket-power devices was very small in 1925, and the value was not reported separately, but was included in the value of miscellaneous radio parts.

The establishments engaged in the manufacture of batteries in 1927 reported products valued at $150,451,796, a decrease of 3.1 per cent, as compared with $155,247,811 for 1925, the last preceding census year.

The total production for 1927 was distributed as follows: Storage batteries, $80,496,735; parts and supplies for storage batteries, $17,486,178; 6-inch dry cells, 54,985,815, valued at $9,287,154; cells for radio B and C batteries, 530,512,320, valued at $26,907,806; cells for flashlight batteries, 133,143,601, valued at $6,035,659; parts and supplies for dry batteries, $6,756,241; wet primary batteries, 2,410,927, valued at $3,358,729; parts and supplies for wet batteries, $123,294.

Battery Production

The production of storage batteries, 6-inch dry cells and wet primary batteries shows considerable decreases both in number and in value for 1927 as compared with 1925. On the other hand the production of radio B and C and flashlight cells increased in value from $24,922,773 in 1925 to $32,943,465 in 1927 or 32.2 per cent.

It is expected that during 1928 the sale of battery substitutes will show a still greater relative increase over the sale of batteries, although the actual sale of batteries may increase materially.

TWO MORE BOOKERS ANNOUNCE MERGER

The merger of two of the leading concert managers, George Engles and Daniel Mayer, Inc., has been announced. This announcement follows closely the merger of Arthur Judson and the Wolfsohn bureau.

The combined managements of Engle and Mayer will have about 30 artists and musical organization, including Paderewski, Schumann-Heink, Marion Talley, Jascha Heifetz, Dusolina Gianini, the New York Theater Guild, Paul Kochanski, Mischa Levitzki, Guy Maier and Lee Patterson, George Barrere, Emelio de Gorgorza and the Russian Symphonic choir.

Engles is also managing director of the National Broadcasting and Concert bureau, which manages more than 100 radio and concert artists.

First Radiola 64 In Orange County On Display Here

The new Radiola 64, the first of its kind in Orange county and the third in the state of California, now is on display in the Foster-Barker Music house, at 309 West Fourth street, and, according to Milton Foster, combines features which make it the ultimate in radio receivers.

The Radiola 64 is a nine-tube super-heterodyne and new features on it include an automatic fade control, which makes fading impossible; a Radiola 105 power speaker with power amplifier, and a wave meter.

The speaker on the Radiola 64 really is the most expensive part of the machine, Foster said, and it is so powerful that a special control knob is provided for the speaker alone.

The wave meter is something new and allows exact settings on wavelengths. The needle in the dial shows the slightest deviation from the exact wavelengths of a station and also makes it impossible to tune across a station without knowing it. It is especially well adapted to distance tuning, Foster said.

START 'EM YOUNG IN RADIO

Here is the right idea. Start training future radio artists when they're young and they won't know the meaning of "mike fright," that terrible demon of broadcasting. Little David Dixon, for example, is only 20 months old and lacks the vocabulary and diction necessary to successful broadcasting, but he's already at home before the mike. And that's a satisfaction to the announcers at the National Broadcasting studios in New York. In a few years he'll make his proper debut in the N. B. C. Children's hour.

RADIO STATIONS MUST STAY ON THEIR OWN WAVELENGTHS, COMMISSION ENGINEER WARNS

By DR. JOHN H. DELLINGER
Chief Engineer, Federal Radio Commission

The success of the new allocation of broadcasting stations is closely bound up with accurate adjustment of the different stations to their assigned frequencies.

There is every reason to expect that the new allocation will bring greatly increased service to the radio listeners. This is based, however, unequivocally upon the rigid adherence of each station to the frequency assigned.

Not only the commission, but the broadcasters in general realize this fully and it is expected that the stations will all operate accurately on their new frequencies. The commission's general order No. 7, specifying one-half kilocycle as the extreme permissible variation, is still in effect.

It has been brought to my attention that an impression has become current that the commission would allow a period of grace during which frequency variations would be tolerated. This rumor is groundless..

The new allocation was announced two months ago. The commission obtained the co-operation of the two branches of the department of commerce concerned in frequency measurements to aid all stations in the adjustments to the new frequencies.

The bureau of standards made special arrangements to calibrate frequency standards and the radio supervisors of the department's radio division placed themselves at the disposal of stations to co-operate in the new adjustments. In addition the commission issued a general order (No. 45) giving all stations freedom to make tests on the new frequencies during late night hours.

It is true that there have been some changes in the allocation from the original announcements two months ago, but these have been relatively minor and it is believed that the changes will not interfere materially with the general prevalence of accurate frequency operation.

The radio supervisors of the department of commerce have been instructed to make special arrangements to measure the frequencies of all radio stations. Stations which are not operating correctly on the new frequencies will not be allowed to continue on the air.

BEFORE THE MIKE

Another "network" may be recorded in the annals of broadcasting. This is the state chain formed by WTAM, Cleveland, and WLW, Cincinnati, Ohio's most powerful broadcasters, for the broadcasting of a sponsored program every Tuesday evening at 7:30.

He knows they number in the thousands from the piles of letters he's been getting from them. "Grandpa" is Albert Ely, KSTP's staff organist. He explains his selections to his children and entertains them further with stories, poems and intimate chats.

Would-be dancers may tune in on WLW, Cincinnati, every Thursday at 4, for a series of lessons in the modern terpsichorean art. "Pep" Golden, head of a local dancing school, is the master.

Radio has awakened interest in music to such extent that fans are buying more sheet music and books of music than ever before. The U. S. census bureau reports a 10 per cent increase in the sale of sheet music in two years. Even the number of music publishers increased nine per cent.

* * *

In the 17 hours of broadcasting scheduled for WLW, of Cincinnati, there are only 45 minutes of silence. But those 45 minutes don't mean freedom for the WLW staff. They take advantage of the pause by meeting in conference and discussing further operation of the station.

AUDITION FINAL WILL BE HELD DECEMBER 16

Miss Irene Kilgore, Oakland coloratura, and Donald Novis, Pasadena, tenor, having been adjudged champion singers of far western states in semi-finals of the second national radio audition, today are preparing to compete in New York in the national finals.

Semi-finals were sung in San Francisco, over station KPO, November 12. National finals will be sung in New York on December 16, during the Atwater Kent hour, and will be broadcast over a country-wide chain of stations by the National Broadcasting company. The Atwater Kent foundation will divide awards totaling $17,500 among 10 finalists, representing all parts of the country.

Miss Kilgore, announced to radio listeners as Contestant No. 49, sang "Caro Nome" from Rigoletto, while young Novis, introduced as Contestant 98, sang the aria "La Reve," from Manon Lescaut.

Those who placed second in the semi-finals were Miss Helen Copeland, of Bisbee, Ariz., who, as Contestant No. 43, sang "To a Hilltop," and Gordon Edwards Cross, of Spokane, Wn., who, introduced as Contestant No. 84, sang "Watchman Will the Night Soon Pass?"

Novis, a student in Whittier college, was soloist in Pasadena high school's graduation exercises last year and sang before 17,000 people in the Rose Bowl. His father is Welsh and most of his family are musical. His brother, Edward Novis, is now enroute to Italy to prepare for concert work. He represented Southern California in the first national radio audition last year and sings over station KNX, Los Angeles.

In finals in New York, next month, the boy and girl who are adjudged best each will receive $5000 cash, a gold decoration and a two-year scholarship in a leading American conservatory. Second place winners, a boy and a girl, each will receive $2000 and a year scholarship; third place winners, each $1000 and a year scholarship; and fifth place winners $250 each. fourth place winners, $500 each,

CO-OPERATION OF LISTENERS IS NECESSARY

By THE RADIO EDITOR

Is there really a serious condition of interference in Santa Ana? From the response to our request that the data blank printed daily in the radio section be filled out and mailed in we have about decided that the interference problem has been greatly exaggerated.

The local interference workers find themselves handicapped without this data and unless there is some immediate indication that fans really find their reception hampered by interference, the committee doubtless will be discharged.

When this condition originally was taken up, letters from fans indicated that the condition was extremely bad. So with these few cases to work on the committee of the Radio Trades Association of Southern California came to Santa Ana. It met last Monday night with the dealers here and is willing and ready to work out any local problems of electrical interference. But it will make no further efforts until some real data is furnished by the fans.

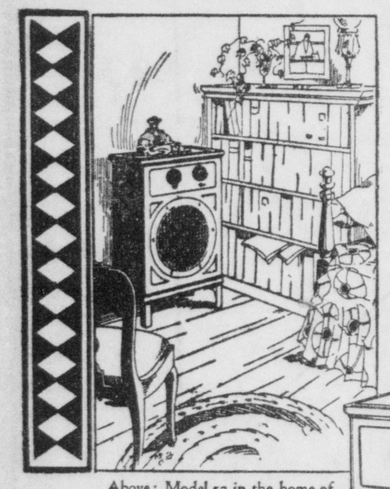

Fail to Name Sets

Few of those, who originally wrote in even mentioned the make of set they are using. It is necessary that we have this information and also necessary that we know whether the set is battery or socket operated. That is, does the set use battery type or AC type of tubes.

Now, fans, it is up to you. If you do have poor reception because of line noises, or in fact any form of electrical interference, FILL IN THAT QUESTIONNAIRE. It requires but little effort on your part and the time involved is nothing compared with that required of the men who,

Hear the Instrument Not Just the Radio

Get Faithful Reproduction of the Low Tones

Your radio can't have fine tone quality unless it gives you fidelity of reproduction on the low tones. Here is why:

Radio reproduction is based on the principle of transforming radio waves in the air into waves that can be heard by the human ear. All sound is the result of waves. In radio language we call them frequencies. The number of frequencies per second determines the pitch or tone.

For example, the tone of the highest key on a standard piano keyboard has 4340 frequencies. The next highest has 4096—a difference of 244. A slight distortion of these values cannot be detected by the ear.

But the tone of the lowest key on an organ has 16 frequencies. And the next 16 94-100—less than one frequency difference. A very slight variation in the response of the speaker here will result in unfaithful reproduction.

It is not difficult to get good reproduction on the high tones. The important thing is to get faithful reproduction on the low tones. That is the real test of tone quality. That is why you should make sure to choose a radio that gives you fidelity of reproduction on the lower tones.

Every radio reproduces what is being broadcast. But you want a radio that will produce music of the same quality and mellowness that is heard in the studio where the music is being played.

And the only way you can be sure of this is to have a radio that brings in every note with its overtones and undertones. For these overtones and undertones are what give the quality of mellowness and resonance. Without them reproduction is too sharp and thin, lacking that fullness and richness of the original instrument.

The Day-Fan set not only gives fidelity of reproduction on the low pitched instruments and low tones, but without sacrificing selectivity it permits a reproduction that includes the overtones and undertones—you actually hear the instrument that is played—not a radio revision.

ROYALE CONTEST STANDINGS SAME

No change has taken place in the standings of those owners of "Preston-ized Royale" radios who are participating in the contest for receiving the greatest number of stations, it was announced today by Ralph Preston, proprietor of the Preston Radio company.

Edward A. Ham, of Balboa, still is leading, with over 125 stations to his credit. New stations received this week by Ham include JODK and JOAK, Japan; 1YA, New Zealand; KZRQ, Manila, and 4QG, Brisbane, Australia.

Cecil collins still is in second place and Mrs. E. G. Stanbro maintained her position in third place, Preston declared.

Radio Officials Inspect Monitor

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 1.—W. E. Downey, assistant director of the radio division, department of commerce; Arthur Batcheller, New York radio supervisor, and S. W. Edwards, Detroit supervisor, recently inspected the new monitoring apparatus being built here for the division.

HIRAM BROWN TO HEAD RADIO, KEITH COMBINE

The election of Hiram S. Brown as president of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation at a meeting of the board, held on Wednesday, was announced today by David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of directors of that organization.

Brown has had a markedly successful career in the public utilities field, also as chief of the finance division of the air service during the war and in industrial reorganization. He will leave the presidency of the United States Leather company to join the recently formed Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation. His election to his new post becomes effective Jan. 1, 1929, or before that date if he can so arrange his present duties.

"The selection of Brown," Sarnoff declared in a statement announcing the appointment, "is the consummation of a step that has been under consideration for the last three weeks. It is a selection of an unusual man for a post requiring exceptional constructive and administrative ability. The Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation is building upon a foundation that has no exact parallel in the amusement field. The new company is associated with the Radio Corporation of America and its subsidiary, the RCA Photophone company, with vaudeville by ownership of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum corporation, with motion picture production through acquisition of the FBO Productions company, and with broadcasting through the co-operation to be given by the National Broadcasting company.

"The existing personnel of the enlarged Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation already includes the entertainment, picture production and theater experience necessary to the successful operations of the company.

WENR, the Great Lakes Radio Broadcasting company, Chicago, is the latest station to join the National Broadcasting company's network.

WHAT'S YOUR TROUBLE?

This department is conducted by an expert radio technician, who, without cost to you, will answer any and all of your questions pertaining to radio troubles. Radio fans are invited to make use of this department, which may save them time and money on their radio sets. Address your communications to "The Radio Editor, The Register, Santa Ana."

Q.—I have an A. K. 20 set that is not equipped with a "C" battery. I have been told that connecting one to the set will save my "B" batteries. How shall I connect it? Reader.

A.—The plus side of the "C" battery should be connected to the negative "A" post, or storage battery minus. Now disconnect the two wires from the audio transformers that run to the negative filament socket contacts. Connect these together and solder to a common lead. Connect this lead to minus 4½ on the "C" battery.

Q.—How may I improve the selectivity of my single circuit tuner? I have trouble separating some of the local stations. E. W. City.

A.—Try connecting a .0001 fixed condenser in series with the aerial. If this does not give you the required selectivity, shunt a .0003 fixed condenser across the antenna and ground posts, this to be in addition to the above.

Q.—Is a cage aerial better than a single wire? C. M. R. City.

A.—Cage type aerials are mostly used for commercial work. They are little better than a single wire for broadcast reception and have a tendency to make the set broad.

Dubilier Patent Claims Are Held Invalid By Court

In an opinion handed down November 5 by Judge John C. Knox, of the U. S. district court for the southern district of New York, the patent claims upon which the Dubilier Condenser corporation based its suit against the Aerovox Wireless corporation, for alleged infringement of Dubilier patents on mica condensers, were held invalid and a decision was rendered in favor of the Aerovox Wireless corporation.

In reviewing the facts in the case, Judge Knox found that the patent claims contained in the Dubilier patent No. 1,497,095 owhic Dubilier brought suit for infringement were not valid and that the patent claims in the Horton patent No. 1,497,095 and that the patent claims in the Horton patent No. 1,572,604, owned by Dubilier and on which Dubilier also brought suit for infringement were not infringed by the construction of the Aerovox condensers. The opinion goes on to state at length why the patent claims on which Dubilier brought suit represent nothing worthy of monopoly protection.

DESIGN BEAUTY IS STRESSED IN ZENITH RADIO

Reminiscent of the days when the only member of the family who knew anything whatsoever about the radio set was the man of the house, little or no consideration was given to the beauty of the cabinet which housed the receiver. Like everything else in its amateur stage, the radio set of years ago was ugly in appearance and proportion and presented an 'out-of-place' look no matter where it was placed in the home.

As soon as radio outgrew its kit stage and started on its way toward becoming a household necessity, the lady of the house began to take an interest in it, resulting in radio manufacturers catering to her taste in home furnishings by beautifying the box-like cabinets. It was not long before the idea was conceived of concealing a radio set in a piece of furniture and it was then console models made their initial appearance.

Today radio cabinets play an important part of the sales value of a radio set. Radio manufacturers are now putting equally as much effort on the beauty of the cabinets as they are introducing efficiency in the set, because radio sets today are purchased with the thought of blending harmoniously into the home surroundings.

Particularly noted for the excellence of furniture as well as the perfection of its chassis, are the Zenith radio receivers, according to Bob Gerwing, Santa Ana Zenith representative. Zenith cabinets lend harmony and decorative beauty to any room, coming in the early English and Italian Rennaisance designs, with the special period deluxe models, masterpieces of rare cabinetmaker's art, Gerwing said.

UNION OF BROOKLYN STATIONS PROPOSED

A plan sponsored by civic associations has been formulated for uniting WLTH and WBBC, both of Brooklyn, New York City, so that each would retain its individual call letters, but both would share time on a favorable frequency, around 1000 kc., on 1000 watts.

FANS FAIL TO CO-OPERATE IN DRIVE ON NOISE

without compensation of any kind, are devoting their energies to cleaning up this situation.

With regard to letters already received, we will outline briefly the action contemplated.

In the 200 block on Spurgeon street we have two complaints. The committee will work this location out shortly and further details will be printed on this page.

Shouldn't Affect DX

As regards the letter received from a reader residing in the 2000 block on South Van Ness: There is some interference there, but it should not affect your getting DX stations. Tuesday night the Radio Editor worked that location with one of the committee and had no trouble in bringing in such stations as WLW, WGN, KMOX, WJR, WMAQ and KDKA. Have you had your set checked lately?

To the reader residing in the 600 block on East Pine street, we would suggest that she be a little more patient. The situation in that neighborhood is receiving attention and will be cleaned up as soon as possible.

If the fan who lives in the 900 block on Minter street will fill in the question blank and mail it to us, the committee will try to help him. Data in letter is insufficient to work on.

To the fan in the 400 block on South Bristol we would suggest that she consult the dealer from whom she purchased her set. There is nothing in the new reallocation plan that would cause noise in reception. A set improperly designed or balanced may have some trouble with selectivity but there was nothing in this change over to cause electrical interference.

Not Enough Information

As regards the situation at the 2000 block on North Ross: If the fan will fill in the question blank we will try to help him. Not enough information in first letter to give us a chance to help here.

The 600 block on North Garnsey is bad. However, we must have more information. If fans in that block will fill in blank it will help.

The condition on West Fourth street is bad, but we must have more data. Fans in that district are requested to fill in the data sheet. A little co-operation from residents along the P. E. line in reporting receiving conditions will help a lot.

The 100 and 200 blocks on North Parton are being worked on. We hope to get this cleaned up shortly.

The 100 block on South Broadway is bad, but is likewise difficult. Most of the interference here is industrial. If it were caused by the Edison company or P. E., practically immediate results could be obtained, as these two companies are very considerate and do all they can to keep conditions right at all times.

If the fan living in the 800 block on Cypress will fill in the data sheet, we may be able to help him.

Not Edison Noise

The condition in the 500 block on East Washington is receiving attention. However, we feel that the fan is bothering the wrong people about this interference. In our opinion the noise is not Edison.

The fans living on Bristol, West Third, West Fourth, West Fifth and Sixth who signed and sent in a petition are requested to mail in the data sheet. Again we would judge these people have been complaining to the wrong concern. The noise is not caused by the Edison company. Send in the data we need and the committee will do the rest. It will take a little time because the condition is bad.

The condition in the 900 block on West Chestnut is caused by some appliance or machine in that immediate vicinity. Fill in the data sheet and we will endeavor to help you.

The condition at the 800 block on North Birch will receive attention as soon as we receive the questionnaire.

Trouble in Homes

A reading of many of these letters indicates that quite a bit of trouble reported is within the homes of the writers. How many of you have checked to make sure that all connections in your antenna and ground systems are tight? How many know that the fuses of their lighting system are tight and bright. How many of you are using vacuum cleaners or washing machines or sewing machines or other appliances which mar your reception. If these devices interfere with your radio reception, the chances are that it is likewise bothering your neighbors. If you have such a device, write us, giving data as to what it is and we will try to tell you what to do to end such interference.

The local radio dealers, the Radio Trades association and The Register are working hand in hand to give this community better radio reception. They are receiving whole-hearted support from the Edison and P. E. companies. It is up to the fans, now.

If you want quiet reception, it is up to you to fill in the data sheets and mail them in. DO IT RIGHT NOW.

Further, if you have any device that bothers your radio, report it. It will cost very little, just a dollar or two, for you to put condensers on such appliances and stop the interference. If you will do this everything will be cleared up. If you don's report such devices, no matter how much work is done by the committee, your neighborhood still will be noisy. Now which is to be be? Quiet reception is yours if you really want it. The next three or four days will tell the story and if the condition is not cleaned up, the fans will have themselves and no one else to blame.

ROSA PONSELLE WILL SING ON GMC PROGRAM

From a "nickelodeon" soloist at $12 a week to prima donna in the Metropolitan is the story of Rosa Ponselle, who will be guest artist in the General Motors Family party on Monday night. A program of popular classical music will be presented by Miss Ponselle, who will be supported by a symphony orchestra, directed by Eugene Goosens, conductor of the Rochester Philharmonic orchestra and an outstanding modern composer.

Rosa Ponselle was born in Meriden, Conn., the daughter of poor but thrifty Italian immigrants. She sang constantly at her play as a child and began her public career when still a young woman, as a member of a local church choir. The manager of a nickelodeon gave her a singing job in his theater and her voice packed the house at every performance. Her next step was to a hotel in New Haven, where, much to her surprise, her salary was fixed at the large sum of $50 a week. A theatrical manager heard her sing in the hotel and employed her and her sister Carmela for a vaudeville tour.

She was discovered as a grand opera possibility by the great Caruso, who heard her sing and arranged an audition for her with Gatti-Casazza, manager of the Metropolitan. Miss Ponselle did not know an operatic role when the audition was given but, nevertheless, Gatti-Casazza gave her a contract with his great operatic organization. She made her debut on November 15, 1928, singing "La Forza del Destino" with Enrico Caruso himself, the first American girl to receive this mark of distinction. Since then she has risen to foremost position on the Metropolitan stage.

NEW DYNAMICS SEEN AS GREAT STEP FORWARD

The advent of the new type all-electric radio receivers that operate directly from the lighting current in the home without the use of batteries or eliminators of any kind has rendered obsolete hundreds of thousands of battery type radio sets of numerous kinds, according to Kenneth G. Ormiston, technical editor of Radio Doings and a radio engineer of national prominence.

"Many radio enthusiasts still are satisfying themselves with the old type receiving sets because they do not realize the pleasure to be derived from the newer and more modern equipment," he said.

"The advent of the dynamic power speaker, which is self contained in several of the new receivers of representative quality, opens up a new field of enjoyment for music lovers," continued Ormiston.

Power Reproducer

"This new type of reproducer, truly a power reproducer in every sense of the word and formerly a very expensive apparatus, is capable of reproducing with surprising tone fidelity every note in the musical scale from the deepest bass to the highest treble, and this without distortion of any kind.

"It also is true that thousands of music lovers have hesitated at buying the more modern equipment on account of placing too high a valuation on their old radios. The advent of the newer receivers that embody latest features in receiving circuits, all-electric operation and tone reproduction has made obsolete practically 70 per cent of all radio receivers in use and the older-type merchandise, having practically no resale value, is really on the same plane as orphaned autos that find their way to the various junk yards, where they are torn down for the various metal parts they contain. There even now are junk shops that specialize in obsolete radio equipment and it is my opinion that within the next year or two this will be a thriving business.

Must Consider Pleasure

"I believe that music lovers who are hesitating at buying one of the more modern radio receivers merely because they can't find some radio dealers who will take an obsolete radio in exchange at an exorbitant price are really depriving themselves of a great deal of genuine enjoyment without good reason. My advice to them would be to consider the pleasure they already have had from their old radio, place a dollar and cents value on it, and they undoubtedly will find that they can well afford to let their old radio receiver go into the hands of some reputable dealer who will place a fair value on it. Then, with the new equipment, they will be in a position to really enjoy the fine entertainment."

AT THE THEATER

WEST END

"The Wheel of Chance" is not a story about the great gambling halls of Monte Carlo, nor has it anything whatever to do with devices of chance.

The newest Richard Barthelmess starring feature which comes to the West End theater tonight has given the impression, because of its title, that the story revolved around the famous roulette wheel. As a matter of fact, "Roulette," the title of Fannie Hurst's story from which the film was made, was derived from the familiar rule that in roulette when black wins red must lose, and vice versa.

In "The Wheel of Chane," the picture version of "Roulette," there are twin brothers, one black haired and the other red. These two boys are separated by a trick of fate in Russia and 20 years later they meet under very dramatic circumstances in modern New York. Barthelmess plays both roles.

"The Wheel of Chance," aside from giving Richard Barthelmess unusual histrionic opportunilites, gives his director, Alfred Santell, another triumph to add to his list which includes "The Patent Leather Kid" and "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." The cast includes such notable names as Lina Basquette in the feminine lead, Margaret Livingston as the "ather woman," Bodil Rosing in the role of the mother, Warner Oland as the father, Jacob Abrams, Ann Schaeffer, the twin boys, Roy and Ray Berendzen, Sidney Franklin, Martha Franklin and many others.

YOST BROADWAY

Since the advent of movie 'teams" the hardest work on the part of the producer has been finding a story that shows off both members to equal advantage. Miss Mackaill and Mulhall have been more fortunate in past opuses, but in "Waterfront" they have reached a goal that will be hard to surpass.

Miss Mackaill is cast as the daughter of a tugboat captain, who yearns for a life on the bounding main. Her father (Knute Ericson) has seen enough of the waterfront and wants to spend the rest of his life on a farm. Dorothy seems doomed for just such a life after years around the breakater, when Mulhall, in the guise of a seaman, enters her life. She falls for the handsome sailor, partly it must be admitted because she sees an opportunity to stay by the sea. Everything is knocked into a cocked hat, however, when her sailor boy confides in her that his greatest ambition is to buy a farm and desert his ship.

To tell whether hiss Mackaill persuades her sweetheart and father or they convince her of the attractions of farming, would spoil an evening's entertainment, but what does happen will keep you thrilled and laughing until the picture is finished.

"Waterfront" was directed by William A. Seiter, considered by many to be an outstanding director of farce comedy. This picture is by far the best he has ever made. Those of the supporting cast deserving mention are Frances Hamilton, Ben Hendricks, Pat Harmon, James Bradbury sr., and Bill Bailey.

YOST BROADWAY

Sunday

Thrills of the sort you see once in a lifetime are in store for motion picture patrons in "The Crash," First National's photoplay which is the attraction at the Yost Broadway Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, with Milton Sills in the starring role.

Sills has always been known as the "he man" of the screen. In past pictures he has been called upon to perform some difficult feats, but in "The Crash" he surpasses anything he has ever done on the screen both in scenes calling for strength and courage.

"The Crash" is a screen version of Frank L. Packard's magazine story, "The Wrecking Boss," and was directed by Edward Cline. The leading feminine role is played by Thelma Todd and others in the cast are William Demarest, Wade Boteler, Yola d'Avril, Sylvia Ashton and Fred Warren.

State Agencies Aid Federal Directors

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Federal research work in agriculture is now directed by a definite policy that seeks to enlist the active initiative of the state agencies, to avoid interference or duplication of work as between the states and the federal department, and to further co-operation between the state and federal departments in solution of problems that transcend state lines.

Dr. A. F. Woods, director of scientific work in the department of agriculture, declared that the passage of the Purnell act favored the extension of co-operative research by the state experiment stations and the federal department of agriculture, because this act provided more money to enable the states to take problems which might be construed as either local or national in scope.

LOUIS SPOHR

By RUTH ANDREWS

Destined to win an important place among noted musicians, and become famed as one of the foremost violin virtuosi of his day, as well as a composer of merit, Louis Sophr was born at Brunswick, Germany, April 5, 1784. Of musical parentage, the boy's father was a flutist, his mother a talented singer and pianist. Both parents encouraged the child's developing musical talent, evident at an early age, and to his intense delight, allowed him to begin study of the violin at six years of age.

Dufour, his first teacher, persuaded Louis' parents to allow him to devote himself entirely to music, and under his tuition, the lad made splendid progress. At 12 years, he began to study violin with Kunisch, and harmony and counterpart with Hartung. Following Hartung's death soon after, most of Spohr's knowledge of composition was gained from his own intensive study of classic scores.

At 14 Young Sophr was already an excellent violinist. The Duke of Brunswick having taken an interest in his progress, he began study with Francis Eck, one of the foremost violinists of that time. In 1802, Spohr and his teacher toured Germany and Russia, the youth's playing exciting admiration everywhere. In Russia he met Clementi and Field.

Returning to Brunswick the following year, at 19 Spohr published a violin concerto, also other works with considerable success, and at this time received the appointment of first violinist of the Court orchestra.

The next year (1805), Spohr toured Leipsig, Dreseden and Berlin very successfully, also producing his E minor and D minor violin concertos, and was appointed director of the ducal orchestra at Gotha. Here he met and married Dorette Scheidler, a harpist, who subsequently appeared with Spohr in his many concerts. With her he led a long, happy domestic life. Various compositions were brought out by him at this time, including sonatas for violin and harp, solo pieces and a symphony.

In 1812, at 28 years of age, Spohr became director of the Theatre an der Wein in Vienna, with a substantial increase in salary. While here, he composed an opera, "Faust," first brought out by Weber at Prague in 1816, also a patriotic cantata. He made Beethoven's acquaintance at this time.

Severing relations with the theatre, Spohr and his father concertized extensively in Germany, Switzerland and Italy, here meeting Paganini. He was royally received in Milan. Appointment as musical director of the Frankfort theatre followed in 1817, where he remained for two years, producing an opera, favorably received, but not enduring.

In 1820, Spohr and his wife concertized successfully in London, where he also composed and produced his D flat symphony, directing its premiere rendition himself. January 20, 1821, he made his debut in Paris, and returning to Dresden, again resumed composition.

Assuming direction of the orchestra at the Court theatre in Cassel in 1822, Spohr held this post for 35 years. His most successful opera, "Jessonda," was first performed in 1823, while his most celebrated oratorio "The Last Judgment," was brought out in Cassel three years later. A prolific period of composition ensued, with work for the violin, two operas, a symphony, "Die Weihe der Tone," and his "Violin School" still a standard work for violinists.

Following his wife's death in 1835, Spohr finished his oratorio "Calvary," publicly performed at Easter, considered by him his most successful work, also given in England four years later.

Following an extensive tour, with high honors, the composer produced his unique "Historical" Symphony, definitely illustrating distant periods in development of musical composition. An oratorio, "The Fall of Babylon," was successfully produced at Norwich festival in England in 1842, directed in London by Spohr the following year. In 1850 his symphony "The Seasons," was followed by a considerable amount of chamber music.

Three years later, Spohr visited England for the last time, conducting a series of concerts in London. After his return to Cassel, he produced much worthy music for the violin, both solo and ensemble works.

Now over 75 years of age, Spohr's activities were lessened by failing powers. Physical and mental weakness gradually impaired his former strength, his death occurring in Cassel October 22, 1859.

His character ever marked by sincerity, high idealism, straightforwardness and independence, Spohr was valued by many friends for qualities of uprightness, honesty and kindness. The fact that he had over 187 pupils from whom he would accept no compensation gives ample proof of his generosity. Wagner, whose work he deeply admired, said of him, "The keynote of Spohr's life was faith in his art."

Possessing unusual concentration and industry, Spohr lacked the truly divine fire of fluent creative instinct, marking the work of the more immortal masters. The majority of his compositions, though sweet and graceful, lack certain qualities of immortality. His violin concertos, especially the seventh, eighth and ninth, are the best of his works, and still highly valued by present-day violinists.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

"Penelope's Man," by John Erskine, published by Bobbs Merrill Co., Indianapolis, Indiana.

Dr. John Erskine, when he lectured here last winter, clinched to him quite an Orange county following who will rejoice that another of his books has appeared so opportunely, just before Christmas.

In this new romance "Penelope's Man," the author employs his characteristic subtle humor, sharp repartee, and irony as he has in his versions of the other myths which he has retold. He coaches his stories in up-to-date terminology which adds to the understanding of the stories and the humor of the episodes.

Odysseus is the hero and the author affords the readers the rare pleasure, when handled in his satirical vein, of reading about Odysseus adventures when he was "trying to get home" as well as Odysseus' own account of what kept him away from home so many years.

The episodes of poor Odysseus, heartsick for Penelope and home include lengthy visits with Circe and Calypso, and shorter visits with the Lotus-eaters, Nausica and the Sirens.

Odysseus is frankly in search of experience. Probably few men would blame him for greeting the ladies he visits with admiration, awe, and hope. Odysseus never became a bit sophisticated. He never recognized the "line" of the ladies because he was predisposed to fall for it in every case and he fell hard and stayed as long as he could in every case.

The book is hilariously funny to women and to broad-minded men. The ladies lal along the route, out-smarted Odysseus. They knew in each and every case just how desperate Odysseus was to return to Penelope. Dr. Erskin doesn't bother about maintaining man's dignity but it is sacrificed in a good cause. He has revitalized these old Greek stories for modern readers until one can't afford to miss so rare a commentary on human nature.

"The Central Americans," by Arthur Ruhl, published by Charles Scribner's Sons, $3.

"The Central Americans" is one of the most timely books to come to hand, what with President-elect Hoover's visits to the countries about which the book is written and the greater interest in these countries as well as the South Americas which will follow his visit.

It is an broadening book, easy to read though at the same time establishing in the mind a receptivity for news from the Central American countries.

It was in recognition of the fact that too little is known about the countries of Central America which are politically and economically so important to the United States that Arthur Ruhl undertook his journey through Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, El Salvador and Guatemala to gather the material for this book. Some 10 years before, he had traversed much the same route and kept a diary at that time which refreshed his memory on his more recent trip and enabled him to make comparisons which reveal the extent of progress and growth of American trade influence.

The author reveals the nature of the people, the topography of the country, density of population, industry and agriculture, and state of economic progress.

So little is known of these countries that many are of the opinion that it is an endless job to police elections and maintain the duly elected government in Nicaragua but hope for a peaceful internal future comes through Costa Rica and El Salvador. The former place the author visited on the eve of an election. He found election customs settled down to much heat and talk and parades and flares but no bloodshed. It can be done, that way, even in the Central American republics.

"The Central Americans" is an engaging narrative, whether one desires facts, understanding, or merely pleasure.

"Portraits in Color" by Mary White Ovington, published by the Viking Press.

"Portraits in Color" is a group of 20 sketches of outstanding individuals of the negro race. It is a limited "who's who" of people, many of them in their prime, who are still accomplishing, of whom we may hear more than is here recorded and in which case one will appreciate having read the backgrounds here recorded. Merely for entertainment the book is fascinating. The author has a gift of portrayal, a zeal for her subjects which renders the fifteenth sketch as fascinating as the first, even when all fifteen have been read in rapid succesison.

The characters of the sketches are people who have not only achieved reknown and fame among their own race but individuals whose deeds have distinguished them among any group anywhere, there are artists, lawyers, doctors, newspaper editors, educators. All embody a spirit of service which entails sacrifices, toil, and weary discouragement. It deserves a place on library shelves next to Booker T. Washington's "Up From Slavery."

"The James Gordon Bennetts," by Don C. Seitz, published by Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

"The James Gordon Bennetts, father and son, proprietors of the New York Herald," by Don C. Seitz, is the story of a father and son who built and maintained one of the greatest newspapers published in the United States over a period of 83 years.

The elder Bennett was perhaps the first reporter or recorder of public events in this country. Until the elder Bennett published a newspaper of his own, the daily and weekly periodicals confined themselves very largely to editorial news comment; each editor feeling that his public read his paper for the peculiar, not to say rantancorous, unfair and even libelous interpretation of the daily events. Real news was neglected in order that the editor might spill his bile, wreck vengeance or praise his cohorts. Bennett changed this way of running a newspaper and published instead an account of what actually transpired as nearly as he could determine it. Immediately he became known as a rogue and a scoundrel.

He was publicly horse whipped three times by his strongest newspaper rival for telling the truth about various frauds then being perpetrated in Wall Street.. His financial article on the happenings of Wall Street was the first regular attempt made by any newspaper to report the truth; all other papers deeming it to their interest to report events so as to help their friends put over their financial deals. The elder Bennett was the first to report society events and for this he was ostracized from all the leading clubs and even asked to move from his hotel. But society people soon learned to like publicity and under one excuse or another managed to have a reporter present or give him the accurate facts concerning their parties. Always there was a "wonder" as to how the Herald got the news. Bankruptcies and court procedures were regarded as beyond the sphere of the press, but Bennett persisted in publishing both and when upon one occasion he was fined for reporting a bankruptcy an unknown donor sent him the money for his fine. The Herald grew immensely, being the only paper to report events accurately, and soon came to be regarded by continental Europe as the best newspaper in America. Bennett kept his newspaper out in front by constantly seeking to give better and quicker news service. He spent more than a half million reporting the Civil War, and instead of seeking the support or friendly attitude of a president, it was his favorable attitude that was sought by them.

The younger Bennett had perhaps as much ability as his father, but being the son of one of the richest men in the United States in point of income, he was raised in an artificial surrounding and looked upon his employes with a sort of sneering contempt, discharging, or demoting his most faithful employes because it suited his whim or fancy; or because he wanted to test their fidelity. During his almost 40 years residence aboard he would frequently send for some one of his employes, ask them a question or two or perhaps only grin at them laconically and send them back to New York. Some of the urgent summons requesting faithful employes to come were undoubtedly due to his habitual drunkenness, for morally the younger Bennett was a depraved and sodden character; given to excesses of moral and alcoholic debauchery.

The Herald nevertheless prospered financially as well and better under the younger Bennett as under his father because he adhered strictly to his father's slogan of getting the news at whatever the cost and printing it while it was still news. During the younger Bennetts regime it probably earned for its owner a matter of thirty millions of dollars all of which he spent to gratify some whim or fancy when not squandering it for parties that the law would forbid in this country. The book is not, however, a record of his moral transgressions but a history of the Herald and its achievements in the newspaper world. Two years before the younger Bennett died, the Herald had ceased to be a profitable institution and after his death was sold and consolidated first with the Sun and then with the New York Tribune.

QUITO, Equador, Dec. 1.—What is so rare as a day in June? Nothing but a polite traffic cop. But here in Quito you find them all that way. When north and south bound traffic is stopped to allow east and west bound traffic through at street intersections, the officer on duty motions to the north and south bound pedestrians to keep on the sidewalks, saying, "With your permission, ladies and gentlemen."

WHAT ARE YOU DOING, JUNIOR?— WHY ALL THE NOISE AND EXCITEMENT?

THAT'S RIGHT, SON, I USED TO EXERCISE A LOT AND I WAS VERY STRONG

—ONE TIME I SAW STRONGSON BILLED AT ONE OF OUR THEATERS. —HE WAS SUPPOSED TO BE JUST ABOUT THE STRONGEST MAN LIVING, SO I THOUGHT I'D GO TO SEE HIM—

STRONGSON

BIJOU ALL WEEK

—HE WAS A POWERFUL LOOKING FELLOW—BIG—AND HE LIFTED BIG WEIGHTS, MAKING IT LOOK VERY DIFFICULT OF COURSE—

1000 LBS.

—AND HE BROKE BIG CHAINS WITH THE MUSCLES OF HIS ARM —I WAS OF THE OPINION THAT HE HAD ONE WEAK LINK IN THE CHAIN—

1000 LBS.

AND THEN HE LAID ON HIS BACK—LIFTED AND BALANCED A PONY WITH HIS FEET WHILE HE LIFTED A BIG DUMB BELL WITH HIS HANDS—

—THEN HE CHALLENGED ANY TWO MEN IN THE AUDIENCE TO LIFT JUST ONE OF THE WEIGHTS—I CLIMBED ON THE STAGE, SAYING I THOUGHT I COULD DO IT ALONE—

1000 LBS.

—I ASKED HIM TO PICK UP TWO OF HIS HEAVY DUMB BELLS, AND THEN WITH ONE ARM I PICKED UP HIM AND THE DUMB-BELLS.

1000 LBS.

—AND THEN I PICKED UP THE THE PONY WITH MY RIGHT HAND AND WITH MY LEFT I JUGGLED TWO OF THE HEAVY WEIGHTS.

Sol Hess

—THEN I TOOK THE HEAVY DUMBBELLS AND TWISTED THEM LIKE THEY WERE TAFFY CANDY, AND THE BIG CHAIN I TORE TO PIECES—THE APPLAUSE WAS DEAFENING—I WAS OFFERED A BIG CONTRACT TO GO ON THE STAGE BUT I HAD NO AMBITION TO BECOME AN ACTOR.

WELL, HERCULES, MAYBE YOU WOULD LIKE TO DISPLAY SOME OF YOUR SUPER STRENGTH BY CARRYING SOME OF THE ASHES OUT OF THE BASEMENT— YOU'D THINK IT WAS PLATINUM THE WAY YOU'RE SAVING IT.
